EXPECTS MARY LANDON BAKER TO JILT LORD CARMARTHEN

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Mary Landon Baker is believed by her father to have decided not to marry Lord Carmarthen, son of the Duke of Leeds, but intimated that his vicious daughter has even him guessing as to whom she may marry. If she has decided to marry Bodjar Pourieth, former Jugo-Slav Consul here, according to rumors, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Baker, have not been informed.

"Mr. Pourieth has been devoted to Mary, but I imagine the rumor of an engagement became current because he has gone to London from Belgrade—where he is now living—to see Mary."

Mary will marry when she is really in love and not before, Baker added.

Miss Baker, who is an heiress, kept Allister McCormick of Chicago waiting at the church five times, once with $100,000 worth of wedding gifts on his hands, then decided finally she didn't want to marry him. Since then she has been reported engaged to Ralph Peto, a 48-year-old British war veteran. Last November her engagement to Lord Carmarthen was announced.

McCormick, tired of waiting, married Joan Stevens, an English girl, late in 1923.

MORGAN'S PARTNER DENIES FORECASTING STOCK ADVANCE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Thomas Cochran, partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., bound for Europe on the Olympic, today radioed to the Morgan firm a repudiation of the alleged interview in which he was quoted as forecasting an advance of 100 points in General Motors stock.

"In response to inquiries made of me by a ship news reporter up on my sailing from New York on a holiday," Cochran said, "I spoke with enthusiasm on the earnings management and prospects of the General Motors Corporation. I authorized no statement of any kind as to the future price of the stock which obviously no one can foretell."

The alleged statement by Cochran, printed by a financial news ticker last Monday, astounded the financial district because of its radical departure from the traditional conservatism of the Morgan firm and immediately started feverish speculation in General Motors stock.

When Cochran sailed Saturday, General Motors was selling at $32.02, exceeded the combined vote of his opponents, Priest and Proctor, 17,415, and better than Proctor on a dry uniform, but he failed to repeat the spectacular performance of William Sacks, wet candidate in the Republican city vote.

Next to the contest for the Republican nomination for Collector, the contest for the third of the Republican nominations for Circuit Judge was of interest. It had been Total City Vote About 127,251.

The total city vote cast for Republican and Democratic candidates for Senator in the primary was 127,251, or 47 per cent of the registration, which was 268,888. The total will be increased slightly by the votes cast on the Socialists and Socialist-Labor tickets, which did not appear in the unofficial count. A 47 per cent vote cast in the primary of August, 1922, when the same nominations were at stake as in yesterday's primary, including the United States Senate, and when Senator Reed was a candidate. In the primary for Mayor in March, 1925, a 58 per cent vote was cast, and in the August primary of 1924, 49 per cent.

Senator Williams, with a city vote of 53,024, exceeded the combined vote of his opponents, Priest and Proctor, 17,415,

VOTE OF STATE FOR SENATOR; TOTALS OF CANDIDATES FOR CITY OFFICES

BOSS ESEN GETS JOLT IN VICTORY OFF F. E. MUELLER

Loses a Key Position in County by Nomination of His Former Ally and Present Foe as Prosecutor

OTHERWISE MACHINE OPERATES SMOOTHLY

Apparently 1000 or 2000 Democrats Interested in Senatorship Voted in Republican Primary.

Although the Republican machine of Fred Essen, boss of St. Louis County for more than a quarter of a century, functioned efficiently in yesterday's primary in adding to the triumph of George H. Williams in the senatorial race. In and in the contests for Congressmen and County Clerk the general belief is that Essen was soundly trounced by the renomination of Fred E. Mueller for Prosecuting Attorney.

The prosecutor holds a key position in the political control of county affairs. Mueller's chief opponent in the race, County Counselor John A. Nolan, has denied accusations that he is an Essen man. The machine was comparatively quiet in this contest, and it was more a case of the boss being against Mueller rather than for Nolan, apparently. Mueller formerly was an Essenite, but he and the party master quarreled.

Unless the three Republican nominees for Judges of the County Court, which is the administrative body controlling most county business, prove to be acceptable to Essen, there is not much encouragement for him in the primary results for local offices. However, there was no great victory for the opposition Republican faction, led tacitly by Fred Kert and former State Senator A. E. L. Gardner.

The annexation question, which will be voted on at separate elections in the city and county on Oct. 26, did not figure in the county primary campaign, the candidates ignoring the possibility that there will be no election for county offices in November. If the merger proposal should be adopted and the county made part of the city, however, some observers have been of the opinion that success for Essen and the renomination of Prosecuting Attorney Mueller and for candidates backed by Essen would include the county voters to favor annexation.

Heavy Vote for Hawes. Outstanding on the Democratic side of the fence was the county's overwhelming vote for Harry B. Hawes for Senator. Its renomination of Richard S. Smiley, the "one-man opposition," for Presiding Judge and the negligible vote cast for Adam Henry Jones, former Prosecuting Attorney, in a "comeback" effort.

It appears that between 1000 and 2000 Democrats voted in the Republican primary, because of interest in the senatorial contest. On the basis of nearly complete returns, the Republican vote was about 16,000 and the Democratic about 22,000, whereas in the primary two years ago, when both parties had warm gubernatorial fights, the Republicans polled 14,000 and the Democrats 54,000. Seemingly the ratio of party strength is about the same as in the 1924 general election, when Gov. Baker, Republican, got 25,000 votes and his Democratic opponent, 18,000.

Yesterday's poll of about 20,000 votes showed electoral apathy, since the registration is nearly 51,000, and only about 40 per cent of the registered voters participated in the primary. The November vote doubtless will be larger but a warm fight on local issues would be required to elect a Democrat to a county office.

A surprise is the defeat of Circuit Clerk Kirchner for renomination and there were close contests for Presiding Judge of the County Court and Associate Judge from the First District, on the Republican ticket.

Details of Returns. Republican returns from the county for 115 out of 121 precincts follow:

WILLIAMS CALLS HAWES' WET STAND A 'GRAVE BLUNDER'

Statement Attacks Democrat for Recognition of Prohibition as a Political Issue.

Senator Williams, renominated yesterday, today issued a statement attacking Harry B. Hawes, Democratic nominee, for taking a position on the liquor question. Hawes having advocated liberalization of the Volstead act. Williams said the Democratic party in its convention would not follow Hawes on the prohibition issue, and that Hawes would be out of harmony with his party on the World Court.

Williams characterized Hawes' recognition of prohibition as a political issue as "a grave political blunder."

"What a happy convention we shall have in Jefferson City," the Senator said in reference to the platform convention to be held in September. "We shall all be in perfect harmony and accord. We shall have no embarrassments there. The Republicans of Missouri are against the League of Nations and its Court, and they will say so. The Democrats are in favor of the League and its Court, but they will not say so because their candidate for Senator is not in accord with his party on this question."

The Republicans and the Democrats have never been divided on the wet and dry question. They could not be because if they did one of them would be a Prohibition party and the other would be an anti-Prohibition party. I have not my party into any false position on that question. The Democratic candidate for Senator has committed a grave political blunder in trying to make it an issue. His party will not follow him at Jefferson City on the position he has taken."

The remainder of Williams' statement dealt with the tariff issue, and expressed gratitude to those who stood by the principles to which we are so devoted."

Collector Nominated in St. Charles County.

Chief interest in the St. Charles (Mo.) County primary yesterday centered about the Republican nomination for County Collector. George Karrenbrock was renominated, defeating Dr. F. H. Achabold by a big majority. Louis A. Ringe defeated William F. Weinrich for Representative in the State Legislature. Judge John H. Sanford, incumbent, was renominated for Presiding Judge of the County Court, defeating August Weinrich. Judge Henry H. Moehlenkamp, who for 31 years has been Presiding Judge of the Probate Court, was renominated without opposition. All are Republicans.

LINK TORN LOVE NOTES WITH HALL MURDER SUSPECT

Letters Found About Bodies of Slain Pastor and Choir Singer Assume Paramount Importance.

GUARD ORDERED FOR "PIG WOMAN"

Special Prosecutor Confers With Governor and Heads of State Police Regarding Investigation.

By Leaged: Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The love letters and fragments of love letters from Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills to the Rev. Edward W. Hall, which were found scattered about their bodies the morning of Sept. 16, 1922, suddenly assumed paramount importance today when State Senator Alexander Simpson, chosen as special prosecutor by Gov. Moore of New Jersey to investigate the four-year-old murder mystery, announced that detectives working under his direction were in touch with evidence linking possession of these letters with one of the persons now under suspicion.

Simpson, who has not yet received his official commission, but who, with the consent of Gov. Moore, has plunged into the task of trying to solve the murder, indicated the importance which he attaches to the love letters found near the bodies of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills, by saying: "I don't distinguish between the people who took the letters and those who did the murder."

Take Those Damn Letters."

He also disclosed that Mrs. Jane Gibson, who leaped into nationwide notoriety four years ago as the "pig woman," had told him when he visited her Monday afternoon on her pig farm near the scene of the crime, on the outskirts of New Brunswick, that on the night of the murder she had heard some one say, "Take those damn letters."

The mention by Mrs. Gibson of a conversation over the letters is a new development in the case. Heretofore, in the reported accounts of the story she told the authorities the only remarks she was credited with overhearing was the exclamation by a woman, "Oh, Harry, why did you do it?"

That latter remark she has repeatedly said followed the sound of voices quarreling and several pistol shots. In her talk with Simpson Monday, she told him of seeing four persons in the vicinity of the Phillips farm the night of the murder, two men and two women.

Important Link in Evidence.

The disclosure that she also claims to have heard someone claiming over the letters is regarded as an important link in the chain of evidence that Simpson is now attempting to forge.

"Somebody took those letters out," Simpson said. "The dead man certainly did not stand up and bear them up."

The special prosecutor again indicated he attaches great importance to Mrs. Gibson's story and announced that yesterday Gov. Moore had called him on the telephone and told him he had received information which strengthened and authenticated the story told by Mrs. Gibson.

Following his conversation with the Governor, Simpson took steps to guard Mrs. Gibson from annoyance and possible intimidation by sending Maj. Mark O. Kimberling in charge, the following telegram:

"After my interview with Mrs. Gibson think she is most important witness. Also think she may be tampered with or terrorized. Please special pains to see she is guarded against intruders."

Guard for Mrs. Gibson's Farm.

Maj. Kimberling immediately arranged for a guard of State troops around Mrs. Gibson's farm.

Having taken measures to protect Mrs. Gibson, Simpson then dispatched a telegram to Prosecutor Milton of Jersey City, who is in town, asking him to assign Capt. Patrick Hayes, former Chief of Hoboken, "to assist me in homicide case of Hall and Mrs. Gibson."

Simpson had a long conference in his office in Jersey City yesterday afternoon with Kimberling, Capt. John J. Lamb of the New Jersey State police, Capt. Hayes and Sergt. Richard Burke of the Jersey City police, who has been working on the case for some time. Simpson did not disclose what went on in the conference, but at close he announced "everything is well covered. We may have some people who have very important evidence, more important than the evidence given by people who have already been on the stand."

Dry Leader to Appear.

George F. Stafford of Monmouth, superintendent of the State Anti-Saloon League, telephoned accepting service on a subpoena and advising the committee that he would be on hand tomorrow. He is to be questioned about activities of the dry organization in the primary.

C. F. Lowrie, secretary of the Progressive party of Illinois, appeared at his own request to deny that Insull had contributed a dollar to Parley P. Christensen, Progressive party candidate for the

Insull Refuses Answers As to Some of His Gifts

In reply, "Were you to be reimbursed for any of it?" "Absolutely not."

"The $2,925.19 spent on the campaign against the World Court, $4500 went to Negroes and Negro organizations. Reed asked for details, but Insull said he did not know about them; that his counsel, Daniel J. Schuyler, handled the details.

Insull said he placed no strings on the $125,000 which he gave to Smith's campaign fund, leaving it to the national officers of the order to decide how to spend it.

He identified himself as a publisher, explaining that he had sold out his holdings in the Western United Gas and Electric Co. and affiliated companies on Jan. 25. He still holds an honorary position on the board. He said the public utility served about 100 towns in Jackson, Franklin, Williamson and Perry counties. The company also owns 30 miles of interurban railroad and about 10 miles of city roads in Aurora and Elgin.

The witness said his stock was bought by A. E. Fittkin of New York and E. H. Rollins & Sons, but that he still has a "large holding of the underlying securities."

"To be frank I took all the cash I could," he said.

Chairman Reed developed that the Illinois Commerce Commission approved an application of the utility interests for an increase of rates on Nov. 11, 1925.

"When did you make your first contribution to Smith's campaign fund?" Reed asked. "It was after that," Copley said.

Supported Smith in 1920.

Smith is chairman of the Commerce Commission. Copley said he supported Smith for the Senate six years ago.

"Did you contribute anything like $25,000 then?" Reed asked. "No, but I gave several thousand dollars."

"Did any of the money you gave come directly or indirectly from your companies?" "Not directly, but indirectly, as my income was from the companies and their sale."

"You see I am not used to being cross-examined. You are too smart for me."

With that Reed informed Insull that it became the duty of the committee to report to the Senate his refusal to answer questions and that the Senate would take such action as it saw fit.

Reed then asked Insull about his corporate holdings.

"Senator, I do not control any of the corporations I operate," the witness replied. "My holdings do not exceed 10 per cent in any one company and it runs down as low as 1 per cent. I merely operate them for 100,000 stockholders and 150,000 bondholders."

Reed then was called.

SHOW SIDELIGHTS OF ILLINOIS DEALS IN SENATE FIGHT

William Hale Thompson Backed Smith to Win Support in Next Chicago Mayoralty Race.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Some interesting sidelights on Illinois politics were revealed by the Senate Campaign Fund Investigating Committee yesterday, but nothing startling relating to the senatorial primary of last April was developed. Three men who bulk large in Republican party affairs in the State—William Hale Thompson, former Mayor of Chicago; Frederick Lundin of Lakeview, former member of Congress, and Homer K. Galpin, chairman of the Crowe-Barrett faction in Cook County, were the principal witnesses.

Thompson, who came from California to testify, told Senator Reed of Missouri, chairman of the committee, that the Crowe-Barrett faction offered to support him for Mayor next year if he would join forces with them on the county ticket which they had in the field. He joined them and supported Frank L. Smith for Senator against Senator William K. McKinley. McKinley was defeated.

Lundin testified that he took no sides in the senatorial primary, being against McKinley because he voted for war and for a "Cossack espionage act" and opposed to Smith because of his failure to support a State political program in 1920 declaring against entangling foreign alliances.

Backed LaFayette in 1924.

Lundin disclosed that he voted for the late Senator Robert M. LaFayette in the 1924 campaign when Smith was chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and endorsed the National party platform calling for American entry in the World Court. He assailed Chicago newspapers, declaring they printed "millions of lies a day," and he also charged that generally speaking leaders of political groups in Cook County could not be successful "unless they become water carriers for the newspapers."

Galpin testified that the leaders of the Crowe-Barrett faction were divided between Smith and McKinley. He told of receiving large campaign contributions for use in support of the county ticket in Cook County, but all of them had been reported before so that nothing was added to the total of $41,110, shown to have been raised for the entire campaign.

Reed asked for details.

Former Congressman Ira C. Copley, whose home is in Aurora, was called as witness. He contributed $25,000 to the Smith campaign fund, it has been testified.

He identified himself as a publisher, explaining that he had sold out his holdings in the Western United

Gas and Electric Co. and affiliated companies on Jan. 25. He still holds an honorary position on the board.

He said the public utility served about 100 towns in Jackson, Franklin, Williamson and Perry counties. The company also owns 30 miles of interurban railroad and about 10 miles of city roads in Aurora and Elgin.

The witness said his stock was bought by A. E. Fittkin of New York and E. H. Rollins & Sons, but that he still has a "large holding of the underlying securities."

"To be frank I took all the cash I could," he said.

Chairman Reed developed that the Illinois Commerce Commission approved an application of the utility interests for an increase of rates on Nov. 11, 1925.

"No, but I gave several thousand dollars."

"Did any of the money you gave come directly or indirectly from your companies?" "Not directly, but indirectly, as my income was from the companies and their sale."

"How much did you give?" Reed asked.

"I'm not going into that," Insull replied.

Reed finally led Insull into admitting a contribution to the Democratic group.

"When you made this contribution to Roy O. West you knew his organization was supporting Senator McKinley?" Reed asked.

"Yes, sir," Insull replied.

"Did he deliver?" asked Reed.

"Yes, sir," Insull replied.

"Did he pay?" asked Reed.

"$68 votes cast McKinley got $68."

"You don't think there was any corruption in the count so that you lost eight votes?" "There was no corruption so far as I was concerned."

"To be frank I took all the cash I could," he said.

Chairman Reed developed that the Illinois Commerce Commission approved an application of the utility interests for an increase of rates on Nov. 11, 1925.

"When did you make your first contribution to Smith's campaign fund?" Reed asked.

Smith is chairman of the Commerce Commission. Copley said he supported Smith for the Senate six years ago.

"Did you contribute anything like $25,000 then?" Reed asked.

"No, but I gave several thousand dollars."

"Did any of the money you gave come directly or indirectly from your companies?" "Not directly, but indirectly, as my income was from the companies and their sale."

"How much did you give?" Reed asked.

"I'm not going into that," Insull replied.

Reed finally led Insull into admitting a contribution to the Democratic group.

"When you made this contribution to Roy O. West you knew his organization was supporting Senator McKinley?" Reed asked.

"Yes, sir,"

PRIMARY RETURNS ON CONGRESSMEN OUT IN THE STATE

All of the Incumbents Who Faced Opposition Are Renominated by Large Pluralities.

ROMJUE WINNER IN FIRST DISTRICT

Lozier in the Second, Dickinson in the Sixth, and Nelson in the Eighth, All Democrats.

By the Associated Press.
The five Missouri Congressmen who faced opposition in yesterday's primary were renominated by large pluralities, returns today showed.
These were M. A. Romjue of Macon, First District; Dickson,
Second District; Clement
Clement, Democrat; Clinton, Sixth District;
Dickinson of Clinton, Sixth District, and William L. Nelson of Columbia, Eighth District, Democrat; and C. D. Dyer of St. Louis,
Twelfth District, Republican.

The only district in which the races seemed at all close was the Fourteenth, in which James F. Fulbright of Doniphan was leading
The Snow of Charleston for the Democratic nomination, and Francis M. Kinder of Poplar Bluff was leading James F. Adams of Ozark
for the Republican nomination.

The returns follow:
First District, Democrat, 99 of 212 precincts: Romjue (incumbent), 95%; Dally, 22%.

Second District, Democrat, 103 of 201 precincts: Lozier (incumbent), 61%; Ragsdale, 10%.

Fifth District, Democrat, 420 of 453 precincts: Combs, 28.5%; Crittenden, 35.4%.

Sixth District, Republican, 29 of 312 precincts: Lane, 12.5%; Gundy,

Third District, Democrat, 52 of 113 precincts: Dickinson (incumbent), 40.4%; Swearns, 22.7%.

Seventh District, Republican, 161 of 237 precincts: Lincoln, 90.9%;
Limbrock, 3.9%.

Eighth District, Democrat, 112 of 173 precincts: Nelson, 89.8%;
Stephens, 9.9%.

(The results in the Tenth, Eleventh, and Twelfth Districts which are in St. Louis, are reported in detail in a separate story.)

Fourteenth District, Democrat, 410 of 410 precincts: Fulbright,
77%; Snow, 7.0%.

Twelfth District, Republican,
140 of 410 precincts: Kinder, 74.4%;
Adams, 6.5%.

Fifteenth District, Democrat, 154 of 245 precincts: Moore, 72.5%; Haller, 27.5%.

than in the long term contest, in which Proctor was a factor. Out of the state, however, there was little difference between the long and short term totals.

Against Hawes, Cockrell carried such strong Democratic dry counties as Audrain by less than 200,
Boone by less than 300, Callaway
by about 800, and Howard by less than 200, while Hawes carried

Democratic dry counties such as Bunkie by more than 600, Marion by more than 1200, Monroe by more than 300, and Randolph by more than 500. Cockrell's home county, Johnson, went for him by about 1300.

Except for the senatorial nominations, the most important Statewide contest was that for the Democratic nomination for Judge of the Supreme Court. Circuit
Judge Ernest S. Gant of Mexico, who had the indiscretions of the state and St. Louis Bar Association appear to have swept the several sections of the state.

Gant Carries St. Louis by 100.

Gant ran surprisingly well in St. Louis, carrying the city by approximately 100 votes, notwithstanding that the Democratic City Committee had endorsed his opponent, Col. Carl Ristine, who called Reed to St. Louis to speak in his behalf last Saturday night as general throughout the state the active followers of Reed supported Ristine.

On return from 2767 out of 47,563 precincts Gant had a total of 7,768 votes, Ristine 7,440, and the third candidate, Mark A. Mc-Graw, 35,425. On these precincts
Gant thus had a lead of 23,362, which is expected to materially lengthen as the missing precincts come in.

For the Republican nomination
State Superintendent of Schools, only other contest of Statewide concern, W. S. Smith of Elgin Springs, and George W.
Jones of Jefferson City apparently in a close contest, 2015 predicting Smith 110,940 and Jones 110,777, a lead for Smith of

CAULFIELD BEATEN BY BATES IN RACE FOR STATE SENATE

Republican Incumbent Loses Renomination by Vote of 8453 to 5392 in 32nd District.

Soothed Refreshed Invigorated

Green fields bathed in sunshine and rich with a riot of wildflowers, fresh exhilarating morning air still moist with morning dew, white clouds billowing overhead—there little tots grow sturdy and strong at their play, while grown folks are soothed, refreshed and invigorated.

In the House of Representatives contests two incumbents were defeated for renomination—William J. Francis, in the First District, and Charles Forster Sr. in the Second District. Nathaniel M. Moore, Negro Representative, was chosen to run again in the Third District, Jones H. Parker, Speaker of the last House, was renominated in the Fifth District. Mrs. Charles L. Passmore, woman candidate in the Fifth, was defeated.

Nominations to State House. The successful candidates for nomination to the House in the five St. Louis districts are as follows:

First District, four to be elected: Republicans, Charles Albrecht, Louis C. Hehl, William Schwartz and Hugo L. Weismantel; Democrats, Louis C. Barbaglia, A. Calio, August J. Deubler and George O. Wilhite, no contest.

Second District, three to be elected: Republicans, Horace G. Beidle, incumbent; Harry C. Fraechter, and Clifford C. Rens; Democrats, John J. Craves and Walter Kuensel, no contest.

Third District, four to be elected: Republicans, Albert A. Huber, Walther M. Mueller, William R. Schneider, incumbent, and John A. Davis; Democrats, Patrick E. Burke, Emil J. Diney, Sam Dine and Anthony R. Wiesner.

Fourth District, four to be elected: Republicans, T. J. Ferris, incumbent, J. H. Ahrens, Louis Mankist, and Louis A. Rienier; Democrats, John H. Adams, Edward J. Myers, Con J. O'Brien and N. D. Rowe.

Fifth District, four to be elected: Republicans, Jones H. Parker and O. J. Papke, incumbents, George W. Wackman and J. Ray Weinbrenner; Democrats, Michael T. Cleary, William H. Corcoran Jr., John J. McNamara and John P. O'Reilly, no contest.

The effect of the endorsement of 26 nominees for the Legislature by the Council for Good Candidates of the Associated Industries of Missouri is not apparent in the result of the primary. Twenty-two of the candidates endorsed were nominated, but a large proportion of them were either uncontested or had little opposition.

Nominations to State House.

The successful candidates for nomination to the House in the five St. Louis districts are as follows:

First District, four to be elected: Republicans, Charles Albrecht, Louis C. Hehl, William Schwartz and Hugo L. Weismantel; Democrats, Louis C. Barbaglia, A. Calio, August J. Deubler and George O. Wilhite, no contest.

Second District, three to be elected: Republicans, Horace G. Beidle, incumbent; Harry C. Fraechter, and Clifford C. Rens; Democrats, John J. Craves and Walter Kuensel, no contest.

Third District, four to be elected: Republicans, Albert A. Huber, Walther M. Mueller, William R. Schneider, incumbent, and John A. Davis; Democrats, Patrick E. Burke, Emil J. Diney, Sam Dine and Anthony R. Wiesner.

Fourth District, four to be elected: Republicans, T. J. Ferris, incumbent, J. H. Ahrens, Louis Mankist, and Louis A. Rienier; Democrats, John H. Adams, Edward J. Myers, Con J. O'Brien and N. D. Rowe.

Fifth District, four to be elected: Republicans, Jones H. Parker and O. J. Papke, incumbents, George W. Wackman and J. Ray Weinbrenner; Democrats, Michael T. Cleary, William H. Corcoran Jr., John J. McNamara and John P. O'Reilly, no contest.

The effect of the endorsement of 26 nominees for the Legislature by the Council for Good Candidates of the Associated Industries of Missouri is not apparent in the result of the primary. Twenty-two of the candidates endorsed were nominated, but a large proportion of them were either uncontested or had little opposition.

selection, has served seven terms at Washington. He is the author of the Dyke antilynching bill and of the law against interstate transportation of stolen automobiles. He has urged modification of the Eighteenth Amendment to permit the return of beer. He is a lawyer, and resides at Hotel Jefferson.

John J. Cochran, Democratic nominee in the Eleventh District, is familiarly known as "Jack" by thousands of St. Louisans. He is well known in Washington, where he served as secretary to two Congressmen and one Senator.

Cochran first went to Washington with Representative William L. Igoe in 1913. He remained with Igoe until 1917, when Senator Stone, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, chose him for the important post of secretary of the committee. After Stone's death in 1918, Cochran returned to service under Igoe, and remained in the same capacity under Hawes, who succeeded Igoe. When Hawes resigned, Cochran announced his own candidacy. Cochran is a lawyer and resides at 3719 Evans avenue.

Irvin Sale, nominated without opposition by the Democrats in the Tenth District, is a lawyer, and resides at 5591 Waterman avenue. David D. Israel, Democratic nominee for the Twelfth District, is a hotel owner and politician. His legal residence is at one of his hotels, the St. Francis, 694 Chestnut street, but he has a home in St. Louis County.

CAULFIELD BEATEN BY BATES IN RACE FOR STATE SENATE

Republican Incumbent Loses Renomination by Vote of 8453 to 5392 in 32nd District.

The outstanding feature of the race for nominations to the State Legislature in St. Louis districts, at yesterday's primary, was the defeat for renomination on the Republican ticket of State Senator William E. Caulfield in the Thirty-second District. William Maffitt Bates won the nomination by a vote of 8453 to 5392.

Of 11 Republican Senators and Representatives seeking renomination, eight were chosen to run again and three were removed from the race in the primary.

In the Thirtieth Senatorial District, William F. Depelhauer, Republican incumbent, was nominated by a more than three-to-one vote. John Sartorius is the Democratic candidate, his nomination being uncontested.

In the Thirty-second District Bates will be opposed by William M. Clancy, Democrat, uncontested. In the Thirty-Fourth District, the nominees are Joseph Mogler, Republican, and Frank X. Reiler, Democrat. Senator Peter Anderson, Republican, did not seek renomination.

In the House of Representatives contests two incumbents were defeated for renomination—William J. Francis, in the First District, and Charles Forster Sr. in the Second District. Nathaniel M. Moore, Negro Representative, was chosen to run again in the Third District, Jones H. Parker, Speaker of the last House, was renominated in the Fifth District. Mrs. Charles L. Passmore, woman candidate in the Fifth, was defeated.

Nominations to State House.

The successful candidates for nomination to the House in the five St. Louis districts are as follows:

First District, four to be elected: Republicans, Charles Albrecht, Louis C. Hehl, William Schwartz and Hugo L. Weismantel; Democrats, Louis C. Barbaglia, A. Calio, August J. Deubler and George O. Wilhite, no contest.

Second District, three to be elected: Republicans, Horace G. Beidle, incumbent; Harry C. Fraechter, and Clifford C. Rens; Democrats, John J. Craves and Walter Kuensel, no contest.

FOUR ELECTION AIDS SENTENCED TO JAIL

Chicago Court Assesses 6-Month Terms Against Four Judges and Clerks.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—County Judge Jarecki today sentenced four precinct judges and clerks of election to jail for six months for contempt of court. The contempt was founded on false returns certified by the election officials at the April primaries.

Already 151 persons, chiefly precinct judges and clerks, have been indicted by the special grand jury as a result of frauds at the primaries in Cook (Chicago) County.

AMERICAN ON TRIAL
IN ITALY FOR KILLING

Artist Charged With Death of French Soldier Who Was Run Over by Auto.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NICE, Italy, Aug. 4.—The trial of Donald Sherwood, New York artist and son of Henry Sherwood, said to be an engineer, for murder in the death of Joseph Leonard Schoerlin, a French soldier of a Chasseurs Alpine regiment, who was run over by Sherwood's automobile May 25, has been begun here. The charge of first degree murder originally made has been changed to unintentional manslaughter.

Sherwood's story is that he invited Sergt. Fock, also of the Chasseurs Alpine regiment, to take a ride in his car. Reaching a corner of the Promenade des Anglais, Sherwood backed his machine. He said he felt a shock and found the injured man.

Sherwood said he asked the Sergeant to help him put the wounded man in the machine but that the Sergeant refused and, after borrowing 10 francs, ran away.

Sherwood drove the injured man to hospital in Nice. The doctor who performed the autopsy recounted Sherwood's story. His report tended to corroborate the story of Sergt. Fock, that the artist had first clubbed Schoerlin and then run over him to make it look like an accident.

The Judge asked the Sergeant why he had deserted his dying comrade and why he accepted the 10 francs. Fock replied that Sherwood told him to go away and say nothing and he took the money to pay his fare back to the barracks.

Thirty witnesses have been called. The courtroom was crowded yesterday, with many women present.

"IT'S all wrong from the start," says Mrs. Sensitive. Slaving over a wash tub takes your strength and health and youth and the steamy suds saves little if any money. 20 pounds of wet wash for $1.20. Delivered promptly every week. Why not?

DEBT PACTS ARE MATTERS OF PAST, MELLON SAYS

Won't Take Up Question Abroad, Never Intended Letter to Peabody Should Be Published.

HE IS DISCUSSED AGAIN IN COMMONS

Foreign Secretary Chamberlain Upholds Churchill for Correcting Misstatement.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Aug. 4.—Re-opening of the discussion over the war debt settlement was unfortunate and deplorable, Andrew W. Mellon, American Secretary of the Treasury, said today in an interview with the American correspondents in Rome. He explained that the debt pacts, so far as he is concerned, are matters of the past.

Reiterating the statements made in France that his visit is purely personal and that he is not burdened with any official mission or responsibilities, the Secretary characterized as the inventions of enterprising journalists the series of widely circulated rumors that he was studying conditions in Europe and had been ordered by President Coolidge to cut his vacation short for that purpose.

His vacation, he said, had been planned months ago, and the debt controversy in which the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Winston Churchill, took a part came up through a misunderstanding. "The remarks of mine which Mr. Churchill answered," said Secretary Mellon, "were contained in an answer I wrote—never thinking the letter would be published—to a communication sent by Frederick W. Peabody of Ashburnham, Mass., to President Coolidge. The question is closed, and of the past, as far as I am concerned. Its reopening is unfortunate."

Secretary Mellon said he was to meet Count Volpi, the Italian Finance Minister, this afternoon, and Premier Mussolini at a later date yet to be fixed. He made it clear that both were purely courtesy visits. No audience with the Pope has yet been arranged.

"With political conditions in Europe as they are," Mellon said, "it is natural that rumors should come up, but the fact is that I have not the slightest intention of studying financial conditions or discussing them with foreign officials."

His original plan was to go to Spain and motor to France, but this was abandoned because of reports of excessive heat and bad roads.

"Instead," the Secretary said, "I went through France with my son and his companion (James McKay of Pittsburg) sightseeing, allowing the boys to see many of the interesting things that Europe affords travelers. My son arrives tomorrow evening by motor from Geneva, after which I will make my further plans.

"I expect to stay in Rome, where I am visiting for the first time, for several days, and will then probably motor to the north of Italy, stopping off for a holiday at the Italian lakes. I will probably sail from Cherbourg, and hope to get back to the United States about Sept. 15."

Chamberlain in Commons Supports Churchill Statement.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Aug. 4.—Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain today supported the "very temperate and very courteous explanation" recently made in the House of Commons by Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill regarding "the circumstances in which and the purposes for which the British Government borrowed money from the United States Government after the entry of the United States into the War."

The Foreign Secretary made his reference to Churchill's explanation during the debate on the Anglo-American debt settlement. The debate was initiated by Capt. William Wedgwood Benn, Liberal, who declared he thought it "unfortunate that the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in defiance of propriety, was drawn into controversy with Mr. Mellon (the American Secretary of the Treasury) and that afterward he broadcast a challenge to Senator Borah."

Capt. Benn thought the people of England did not want to go to America and ask to be let off from their debt. He asserted that in recent years causes of misunderstanding between America and England had been removed, notably by the Washington agreement, the Irish settlement, and the liquor negotiations.

Would Not Impair Friendship.
The Foreign Secretary joined with Capt. Benn in the hope that the friendship of the two great nations would not be impaired by "an ill-tempered or injudicious public controversy."

At the outset Sir Austen said he was glad to notice which Capt. Benn had found nothing to which to take exception in Churchill's explanation to the House regarding the

REPORTED THAT ZINOVIEFF MUST QUIT PUBLIC LIFE

Moscow Dispatch Says He Will Be Forced to Resign as Head of the Third International.

BANISHED TO THE PROVINCES

Moderate Communists, Now in Power, Face Clash With Extremists, Who Want Violent Action.

By Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World. Copyright, 1928, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co., New York World and Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—It is reported from Moscow that Gregory Zinovieff will be forced to resign from the presidency of the Third International and retire from active political life. The Central Committee of the Communist Party has supported the action of the Moderate Communists now in power in Moscow, and has banished him to the provinces.

Zinovieff was permitted to announce that he was going to take a long vacation, but it is also reported that he is going to take it in the remote provinces in Siberia, far from proletarian centers. That he and other extremists in the Communist Party have been pushed out of the scene no one believes, however.

Two Groups Likely to Clash. Zinovieff is expected to stage a dramatic comeback. Since the last election there is a violent minority which was forced to relinquish the power. In many cases the men who retired from local authority are the same who have been dominant since the revolution. They are replaced by moderate opponents, many of them Socialists and social revolutionists, who were forced out ruthlessly by the Soviets seven or eight years ago.

The extremists, who are now out, are ready to follow a violent revolutionary leader such as Zinovieff, and it looks as if the two groups within the communist party must come together in a clash. Zinovieff also has been carrying on propaganda in the red army against the bourgeois manners that have grown up among the moderates in power.

As long as he had a powerful character like Dzerzhinsky opposed to him, he was helpless, but with Dzerzhinsky out of the way, with the suspicion of poisoning never cleared up, and no one to check him, a protracted struggle within the communist party seems certain. This can hardly end without a split.

Propaganda May Diminish. The moderates now have control of the political bureau and the Central Executive Committee, and if they can keep it will get support from other moderates, especially if there are actual revolts among the troops or efforts by Zinovieff's firebrands to seize the local soviets.

With Zinovieff out of the third international, communist propaganda abroad is expected to diminish, but extremists abroad are ready to aid him in forcing a fresh proletarian revolution in Russia to get rid of the moderates, who, in their view, are blocking the way to world-wide proletarian revolution.

INSIDE STORY OF ZINOVIEFF'S FALL AS TOLD IN MOSCOW

By JUNIUS B. WOOD.
Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News, 1928.

The inner history of the events which have occurred in the Russian Communist party are exposed to the world with unprecedented frankness in two remarkable documents occupying more than two pages of the Soviet newspaper.

One is the verbatim report of Alexi Rykoff, premier, explaining Gregory Zinovieff's expulsion from the party's political bureau and forecasting significant future developments. The other is a similar detailed report of the last speech of Felix Dzerzhinsky, president of the police and the supreme council of national economy before his collapse and death three hours later.

Hitherto public reports of party arguments behind the Kremlin walls have been limited to brief announcement of the action taken.

Rykoff's Attack.
"I insist the party's differences with comrade Trotsky are greater than those with comrades Zinovieff and Kameneff," said Rykoff in his report. "More than that, he was the first to propose the political platform which was repudiated by the party. Many times the party has expressed its attitude toward Trotsky. His differences with the party started long before the fourteenth Congress last December. In the thirteenth Congress he attempted to revise Bolshevikism and split the party toward petty bourgeois nationalism."

"The party worked with Zinovieff and Kameneff longer than it did with Trotsky. However, he maintained a different point of view, did not create factions or organize disruption, but carried out the party's resolutions it is unnecessary to enforce measures of discipline against him."

"Anybody who trespasses against the workmen's discipline during a strike is considered a strike-breaker. Anybody who infringes at the discipline of the party or proletarian dictatorship is worse than a strike-breaker."

Proletarians in Minority.

"Our party operates under difficult conditions, with a bourgeois environment outside and a struggle of class forces inside. The proletarians being in the minority in our own country, steel enforcement of discipline is necessary to maintain uniformity within the party ranks."

Zinovieff refused to attend the meeting which expelled him, explaining that he was busy writing a thesis on the recent soviet elections, Rykoff said.

"Though he was insistently invited, he refused to come," Rykoff continued. "If he had appeared and made a frank statement disclaiming participation in illegal, disruptive and factional acts, though all trials led to the third international, of which he is president, a question regarding him would not have been raised."

Regarding Zinovieff's fall from grace, Rykoff said the president of the communist internationale was selected by the congress of the third international and therefore the Russian party could not appoint or remove him. However, many members of the Executive Committee of the third international, as well as officers of the communist party of other countries, were present at the meeting of the internationale.

Quotes Zinovieff.

"They declared on behalf of their parties complete solidarity.

I This is the eleventh of a series of articles surveying the liquor problem and its handling in other countries:

JOLLIETTE, P. Q., Aug. 4.—The country districts of Quebec demonstrate to a remarkable degree the smooth workings of the provincial liquor control laws. Except for the occasional illicit still and blind pig (usually operating in a dry area or a border town), rural Quebec is completely temperate and satisfied with the modified form of control which prevails.

The population is almost exclusively French-Canadian, which means that wine is the favorite drink and beer and spirits are in less demand. When the French-Canadian brings a bottle of whisky home he invariably divides it in three and dilutes it with water. His motive is twofold. He does not care for such high-proof spirits and he is economical by nature. Many country districts are dry by local option, the system inaugurated in 1921 providing that no community need have licensed hotels or taverns against its will. Certain parts of the province are dry and always have been dry, while others are consistently wet. Twenty years ago a great prohibition movement swept Quebec and its effects are still felt in the country districts. Rural Quebec is homogeneous in race and religion. Its people are easily governed and are instinctively responsive to law. Judge H. A. Carroll, one of the liquor commissioners, who is so conservative that he would even wipe out the tavern, believes, however, that the people of Quebec would not tolerate mandatory prohibition. They would demand a safety valve.

Mail Order Liquor Business. The farmer gets his drink supply in a variety of ways. A substantial amount of the liquor he consumes reaches him by way of the postoffice. Two warehouses in Montreal and one in Quebec furnish the rural districts with a continuous supply of whatever they happen to want. If any customer seems to return too often for more than suspected of bootlegging and his warranty is cut short.

By the mail-order system, the liquor commission is able to control the country trade. In the cities there is no way of checking up on the purchases, but the lists of rural customers are on file and can always be consulted.

Cash must be sent with the order, and rural Quebec does a tremendous business in money orders. Then the bottle arrives in the postoffice, or the express office, the farmer calls for it, signs for it and takes it home. After all this trouble he regards his bottle with a jealous eye and is not given a tasting or consuming it in a hurry.

In wet communities, grocery shops sell beer and hotels are licensed. If the population is large enough to justify this, liquor commission shops operate in a few of the towns.

If near the border or on the main roads frequented by Americans they do big business. Off beaten track operations are limited. For instance, in Joliette, a little market town, with a population of about 9000, the Liquor Commission store sold 2059 gallons of spirits and 6840 gallons of beer last year. Valleyfield, with the same population, sold 20,000 gallons of spirits and another 20,000 gallons of wine, the difference being that no tourist ever visits Joliette, but thousands of Americans pass through Valleyfield.

Liquor is sold in a quiet French village. Joliette serves as a good illustration of the little town supplying the purely native rural trade with liquor. It is situated some distance from Montreal, in the heart of a fertile farming district.

In the market day it suggests the French town with the babbling tongues of the inhabitants, their quaint attire and casual air of abundant leisure as they drift about the streets.

In the market square faded umbrellas sprout like giant mushrooms over carts of fruit and vegetables. Pyramids of radishes, carrots, greens, cherries, oranges and strawberries rise in rainbow rows. Plums, hens and ducks grunt and quack and fum underfoot. A vendor is busy demonstrating the virtues of an infallible shaving soap.

Men and women settle themselves on their wagons at noon eat their sandwiches and sip their wine ordinaries under the shadow of big umbrellas. The children scramble about like upstarts.

The Liquor Problem in Canada Strictly Cash Mail Order Trade In Liquor in Rural Quebec Feature of Government Control

This Method Supplies a Check on Bootleggers—Canadian Official Declares U. S. Cannot Maintain Its Social Fabric Two Generations With Contempt for All Law Engendered by Prohibition.

HIS is the eleventh of a series of articles surveying the liquor problem and its handling in other countries:

JOLLIETTE, P. Q., Aug. 4.—The country sets of Quebec demonstrate to a remarkable degree the smooth workings of the provincial liquor control laws. The population is almost exclusively French-Canadian, which means that wine is the favorite drink and beer and spirits are in demand. When the French-Canadian brings a bottle of whisky to a liquor shop, they do a lively trade in wines. In addition grocery shops sell beer.

Saturday night is as sober as Monday morning. Arrests for breaches of the peace are few.

This condition is quite general in the small towns, villages and more sparsely populated areas, unless they happen to be on a tourist highway. This makes all the difference in the world. There is little or no interference with the making of hard cider by the farmer for his own use, or with the brewing of elderberry, currant, dandelion, blue and other varieties of native wine dear to the heart of the habitant.

Complaints Promptly Investigated.

The Quebec district of the Liquor Commission, as distinct from the Montreal district, is a straggling area that runs 600 miles east and west, and north to Hudson Bay. Complaints reach the commission from the most remote spots, and inspectors are started out to the Gaspé coast or to Hudson Bay, sometimes in the dead of winter, when all Quebec is a solid sheet of snow and ice.

Every complaint is investigated, and if there seems to be ground for prosecution the inspectors endeavor to get their evidence, then report to the commission. The most frequent infringements are for selling without license or staying open after hours. Illicit selling is very profitable, since the taxes are so high.

Mall Order Liquor Business. The farmer gets his drink supplied in a variety of ways. A substantial amount of the liquor he consumes reaches him by way of postoffice. Two warehouses in central and one in Quebec furnish the rural districts with a continuous supply of whatever they happen to want. If any customer returns too soon for more he's suspected of bootlegging and is sold short.

In the two dry counties of Quebec—Brome and Compton—the Liquor Commission has no jurisdiction. It is extremely vigilant, however, in Hull, which is across the river from the city of Quebec. Hull had voted itself dry by local option immediately before this occurrence.

In the dry two counties of Quebec—Brome and Compton—the Liquor Commission has no jurisdiction. It is extremely vigilant, however, in Hull, which is across the river from the city of Quebec. Hull had voted itself dry by local option immediately before this occurrence.

Whenever Ontario reproaches Quebec—as it frequently does—Quebec retorts by pointing to Hull, which it considers the sort spot in its domain. It is a fact that Ontarians can leave dry Ontario and be in wet Quebec in a quarter of an hour. Hull succeeded in selling 60,139 gallons of spirits and 18,016 gallons of wines last year, which is considerably more than the quantity sold by Montreal's most popular liquor store.

The climax, as far as Noble himself was concerned, came when he met Mussolini and received from him his personal thanks.

L. B. Cordeau, president of the Liquor Commission, is convinced that 80 per cent of the population of Quebec is wholeheartedly in favor of the existing system of control, in spite of the extensive rural dry area.

"Our people are completely satisfied," he declared in an interview at the headquarters of the Liquor Commission in Montreal.

"Everybody is satisfied with his lot. There are still—there will always be—people who will not observe the law. But for the greater part there is no attempt to violate the regulations laid down. The law works excellently in the clubs. There is no trouble at all with the hotels which have permits. They adhere rigidly to the rules. I admit that there still exist places which have no permits."

"I would not say that a boy in one of the big hotels might not try to make money by selling whisky illegally, but certainly the shanigan would never countenance anything of this sort. Theirs is too much at stake."

Cordeau pointed out that the commission's police force was active all over the province and that during the summer, while the tourists are pouring in twenty-five men on motor-cycles patrol the border.

"There are fewer blind pigs than there were some time ago," he asserted. "There has not been a

ROME HOWLS WITH JOY AT RETURN OF NOBILE

Builder of Polar Dirigible
Norge Receives Public Thanks
From Premier Mussolini.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Aug. 4.—Gen. Umberto Nobile, builder of the dirigible Norge of the Amundsen-Ellsworth North Pole expedition, arrived in Rome from Naples last night, accompanied by the other Italian members of the expedition. Nobile stood on the balcony of the Chigi Palace at the side of Premier Mussolini while the Fascist Premier spoke high praise of him and his companions.

Mussolini said some persons had vainly attempted to dim Nobile's "incomparable glory," but that Nobile deserved triumphant honors because you, an Italian, planned the ship you, an Italian, with others, Italians, built it, and you, an Italian, with others, Italians, while it was guided to the end of the extraordinary voyage."

He added that in the name of the Fascist Government and the Italian people he desired to give Gen. Nobile and his flight companions "an expression of admiration and gratitude of the nation."

Nobile's reception, from the time of his arrival at the railway station until his presentation "to the people of Rome" from the palace balcony, was a triumph. As the train entered the station traffic stopped. Every artery in the center of the city was jammed. Scores of bands blared with martial music and flags waved from thousands of windows.

A silver blimp dipped within a hundred feet of the crowd-blocked streets. Several squadrons of airplanes dived overhead.

After the elaborate reception formalities, Nobile, in an old-fashioned open coach drawn by four horses and accompanied by mounted policemen, proceeded slowly through the crowds to the palace.

The commission further recommended that a central bank be established and that the gold standard be adopted. The Government has not yet voted on these suggestions. Until legislation is introduced the Government has taken steps to keep the movements of exchange between the upper and lower gold points of 14.6-14.6d and 14.5-14.5d.

SAYS SENATE WON'T BAR VARE

Primer Winner Unsmirked, De-Clares Read of Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Senatorial Read, of Pennsylvania, who was in Washington, preparing for a European tour, declared that if a move were made to bar William S. Vare from the Senate if he is elected because of the Senate investigation of the Republican primary in Pennsylvania, it would be unsuccessful. Nothing was revealed that reflected on Vare's integrity, he said. The investigation had shown that only a rich man could afford to be a candidate for the Senate.

Generals Must Remain in Madrid.

MADRID, Aug. 4.—The Government has refused the request of Gen. Weyler, former chief of the general staff, to be permitted to change his residence to some place outside Madrid. A similar request by Gen. Aguirre has met with like treatment. Both men must remain in Madrid; ending the outcome of the legal proceedings against them and others for alleged connection with the political plot in Spain to overthrow the Government last June.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATE-

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely trifling news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

How to Use the Bridge.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I HAVE BEEN reading a good bit about the free bridge for some time; in fact, it has been quite a few years. I remember when I was a boy going to school, I first saw the big red-lettered posters, "Vote for the free bridge, a three-mile-dollar bond issue will free St. Louis." This was about the year of our Lord 1904. And although they have spent the three million, and then some, it does not seem to be free yet.

My esteemed friend, the honorable Mayor, seems to have his hands full corresponding with the various railroad presidents trying to induce them to use it. After I and several other fellow-citizens put up the money to pay for it. Whereas, I was under the impression we would have to arrange for some method to restrict traffic, on account of the grand rush.

Now, I am not a man skilled in the science of railroading, but a man need not be an artist to criticize a play, so I am going to make a suggestion, which if followed, will free the city, and release our valuable Mayor for the more important business of politics.

Inasmuch as the city has gone this far, and spent so much of my money, I am not going to quit, but am willing to throw a few more dollars into the pot. Then, the city can buy or lease a few engines, put tracks across the bridge, and make physical connections where practicable with the railroads. We can then haul freight cars for whoever wishes to give them to us.

The charge should be upon so much a car basis; to earn sufficient revenue to pay the operating expense, and maintain the bridge in good condition. This, according to statistics, would be about $4 or $5 a car, whereas the Terminal is now charging as high as $10 or $12 a car for the same service. So you can readily see that if these railroad presidents are any kind of business men they are not going to pay $10 or $12 for a service that can be had for $5.

If the enterprise should not be a success after spending all that money, I am willing to let a bold-spirited citizen take the prestige of my name to help put it over, and would suggest as a name for the railroad, "The Buncombe Bridge and Tunnel Railroad."

BEVERLY BUNCOMBE.

Note: There are five double tracks on bridge now. They connect with Alton & Southern in Illinois, and with Terminal Railroad Association tracks on St. Louis end. Mayor's ordinance provides for small per car charge.—Editor.

Believed in Annexation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
DID you ever make a crime and fire survey in St. Louis County?

Fires average one a week, with either total property loss or partial damage. Everyone turns out to save the unprotected property with great risk to life and limb. Garden hose and small extinguishers pitifully play upon the roaring mass and wet blankets sprayed by garden hose and buckets manned by scorching neighbors save the adjoining houses. This I have seen time and time again throughout the country.

Ask any telephone operator of the county exchanges about the calls for the Sheriff and Constable during the night; the number of homes pillaged while the residents are away for the evening, the number of girls who are molested on the streets and roads, and hundreds of cases never reported because of the unpleasant notoriety.

These things I have personally witnessed, and I am able to cite many more to convince the blind and any others who will refuse to see the need for fire and police protection over and above the antique methods now in vogue.

Everyone who knows anything about the county can sniff the sanitary condition. Here is to the passing of the ring of Clayton, the expert hoodwinkers and money grabbers.

St. Louis at its worst could do no more than bring the country at least to the frontier market of the Twentieth Century and I warn the old fathers that is a greater task than straightening out a mere tangle like the bridge or live in the county is to know, and I am

NOT BLIND.

Sweltering in Heavy Uniforms.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SEVERAL years ago I sent in a letter to your most valuable paper asking why not have the mail carrier attend to his delivering mail in a cool style of dress and leave off that heavy coat. Could anything be more uncomfortable in hot weather? A coat and a heavy mail bag. Pity the mail man in those days. In a short time the coat was left off.

Now I ask, why can't the same comfort be given to our police? Let our policemen and motor cycle men dress in a cool style instead of a hot, heavy coat; also a light cap. Only the other day an officer was fined for having his coat unbuttoned. That was shameful, and on one of the hottest days.

Let us all be for the comfort of the Police Department. Their duties are hard enough these days.

RESULTS OF THE PRIMARIES.

The outstanding result of the state-wide primaries for United States Senator is the complete rout of the Antisaloon League. Neither Representative Hawes on the Democratic ticket, nor Senator Williams, on the Republican ticket, had the endorsement of the Antisaloon League. To the contrary, the Antisaloon League concentrated its strength on their opponents.

In the case of Mr. Hawes, particularly, the Antisaloon League's defeat is conspicuous. The league concentrated its fight on Hawes. It made about the dirtiest and most unprincipled fight in the history of Missouri politics. It raked up every old charge that has ever been made against Hawes in the course of his political career, and added others, manufactured for the purpose. It sent out lying and abusive circulars, and when the lies were called, carefully avoided correction.

The results in both primaries are good. While the Post-Dispatch criticised Senator Williams for his wobbling on public questions, he is undoubtedly the ablest man in the Republican list. Hawes stands head and shoulders above his opponents. His capacity and fitness for the United States Senate are manifest.

One excellent result of the primaries is the practical elimination of the wet and dry issue. Mr. Hawes stands openly for the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. He is for the modification of the Volstead act. Senator Williams has defined himself as neither wet nor dry, and says he will vote as the people direct him to vote. The Antisaloon League, on account of its hatred for Hawes, will probably concentrate on Senator Williams as the best chance, but it cannot make a real issue out of his candidacy.

Another good feature of the primaries is that the most successful candidates for the United States Senate, although St. Louisans, were nominated by the votes of their parties outside of St. Louis. It cannot be said that any St. Louis machine or St. Louis boss dominated the situation. Hawes, who has been singled out as a former boss of St. Louis, won a majority in the State. The vote in St. Louis was exceedingly light.

The outstanding feature of the city primaries is the defeat of Mayor Miller. With the exception of eight committeemen, every candidate opposed by the Mayor was nominated, and every candidate he supported was defeated. It was a rout for the Mayor. He is the Mayor, but his claim to be boss of St. Louis has turned out to be a joke. His leadership in the Republican party is completely knocked out.

A disquieting feature of the primaries is the light vote. Despite bitter contests in the Republican party in the city, the vote was ridiculously small. The Democratic vote was a jest. The word from all over the State was light vote. Having been given complete power to select their candidates in the primaries, the masses of the voters were indifferent. They stayed away from the polls. The popular primary is a failure.

At last even Coolidge himself has admitted he is good.

A NEW TAX AND 62 NEW JOBS.

A new and curious weapon is to be employed against bootleggers. They are to be taxed at so much a barrel for beer and so much a gallon for spirits. They are to be subject also to a special tax of $1000 for carrying on the business. Gen. Andrews expects to raise money enough by these taxes to reduce materially the appropriations for enforcement.

If it is sound to tax the makers and distributors of illicit liquor, why not carry the idea farther? If the Government is to recognize bootleggers to the extent of taxing them, why not make a tax schedule for safeblowers, second-story men and shoplifters? A levy upon bank robbers alone would yield a neat sum to the Federal Treasury. First, it is true, you must catch your bank robber, but then, also, to collect the liquor tax you must first catch your bootlegger.

One suggestion is as weird as the other. To tax something barred by the law is to admit and connive in its existence. We may yet, as the reductio ad absurdum of Gen. Andrews' program, find a bootlegger bringing action in the courts on the ground that the intent of the new tax is to drive him out of business, and therefore exceeds the proper scope of taxation and is unconstitutional.

One result of the new program is already visible. To get it under way, 62 new jobs have been created. New assessors in that number have been assigned to the Internal Revenue Department. In the world of bureaucracy, any plan which increases the number of feeders at the public crib is, of course, a good one, regardless of other considerations.

Maybe it was Providence, usually described as a dry, that scuttled the Bahamas as they had never been scuttled.

NOISY STREET CARS.

With approximately 80 per cent of the human traffic using street cars, and with an ever increasing confusion of sounds from other sources assailing the public, it is highly desirable that street railway managers should use every effort to diminish the rattle, scraping and banging of these vehicles and give us something approaching the noiseless street car that was announced as in process of invention some time ago.

Perhaps the worst noise maker is the motor cycle with cut-out open. But these are comparatively few, while the street car is ubiquitous. Instead of achieving quiet with the use of electricity, which displaced the clattering mules and the grinding cable systems, street cars today travel as if a large part of the machinery that moves them were loose and the wheels, if not flat, lacked much of being smoothly round. On many of the trailers the release of the brake starts a loud vibration that reminds those who have experienced it of the horrible sensation caused by a ship's screw racing out of the water in a rough sea. Then, as the street cars pass over intersecting lines, the sudden crashing of the wheels caps the climax for nerve-racking noise.

The average passenger gets accustomed to all this. But it must affect the vitality even of the healthy, while many not in the best of health suffer severely. The public has a right to expect that this nuisance, with others, shall gradually be greatly lessened, if it cannot entirely be eliminated.

MURDER IN THE UNITED STATES.

St. Louis, with 70 homicides for the first 214 days of the present year, is only a typical community in the United States, where homicide easily ranks the world. It is a phenomenon that for every 100,000 of population we should have in the United States annually a homicide rate of 7.2, as against 0.8 for the British Isles and only 3.6 for Italy, the champion homicide country of Europe.

The explanation is in part to be found in those omissions of justice of which we have just heard so much from the survey made for the American Bar Association. We make no serious effort to punish murder. The commission which investigated the situation for the Bar Association was quite frank in telling us what we can do to minimize murder, but will we do it? If we will, the proof ought to come with the meetings of the state legislatures next winter. It is the state which tolerates murder if we have it, stops it if it is stopped. That, truly, is not a province of the state in which the central government has interfered.

The results in both primaries are good. While the Post-Dispatch criticised Senator Williams for his wobbling on public questions, he is undoubtedly the ablest man in the Republican list. Hawes stands head and shoulders above his opponents. His capacity and fitness for the United States Senate are manifest.

One excellent result of the primaries is the practical elimination of the wet and dry issue. Mr. Hawes stands openly for the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. He is for the modification of the Volstead act. Senator Williams has defined himself as neither wet nor dry, and says he will vote as the people direct him to vote. The Antisaloon League, on account of its hatred for Hawes, will probably concentrate on Senator Williams as the best chance, but it cannot make a real issue out of his candidacy.

Another good feature of the primaries is that the most successful candidates for the United States Senate, although St. Louisans, were nominated by the votes of their parties outside of St. Louis. It cannot be said that any St. Louis machine or St. Louis boss dominated the situation. Hawes, who has been singled out as a former boss of St. Louis, won a majority in the State. The vote in St. Louis was exceedingly light.

This is also an explanation of the disparity between murder here and abroad. A country like Switzerland, where murder sinks to its lowest rate, 0.2 for every 100,000 of population, has no Negroes, and therefore knows nothing of the primitive emotions of a people only recently delivered from human slavery.

New York has just had an art robbery very much like that in Detroit, which shows that as thieves acquire riches their taste improves.

WHERE ILLINOIS LEADS.

Illinois may still be, by comparison with the State of Mellon and Grundy, a "petty Western State," but in one respect it puts its competitor in the shade. In Senator William B. McKinley, it boasts the candidate who put up the most money from his own funds. Vare had his Greenfield, Pepper his Grundy and Pinchot his family. McKinley came to testimony before the Reed committee at Chicago, dug into his own pocket for $350,000, which makes the sums contributed by the three Pennsylvanians on their own behalf look like chicken feed. There may be a moral in all this, but we decline to go to the trouble of finding it.

The probability that drys result from letting children play on sandpiles might engage the serious attention of science.

MAHATMA KRISHNAMURTI.

From the London special cable, in Tuesday's Post-Dispatch, describing the camp meeting at Ommen, Holland, at which the press-agent Hindu, "Messiah" Krishnamurti, again spoke as one inspired, it is evident that this young man is going to make his mark in the world and arouse a great deal of interest. He is coming to the United States, and all those on the lookout for a new sensation will be on the tent-hands of expectation until he makes his appearance.

The fact that he is said to speak in a different voice while he lectures is nothing new. The phenomena of double or multiple personality, including this phenomenon, have been studied by noted psychologists. It is his message and his origin that single him out as worthy of notice. He desires to unite all religions on their basic principles, and at the dedication of the Theosophist temple at Adyar, India, where he propounded this ideal, many leaders of various religions listened to him, while the audience, said to have numbered 20,000, was deeply impressed.

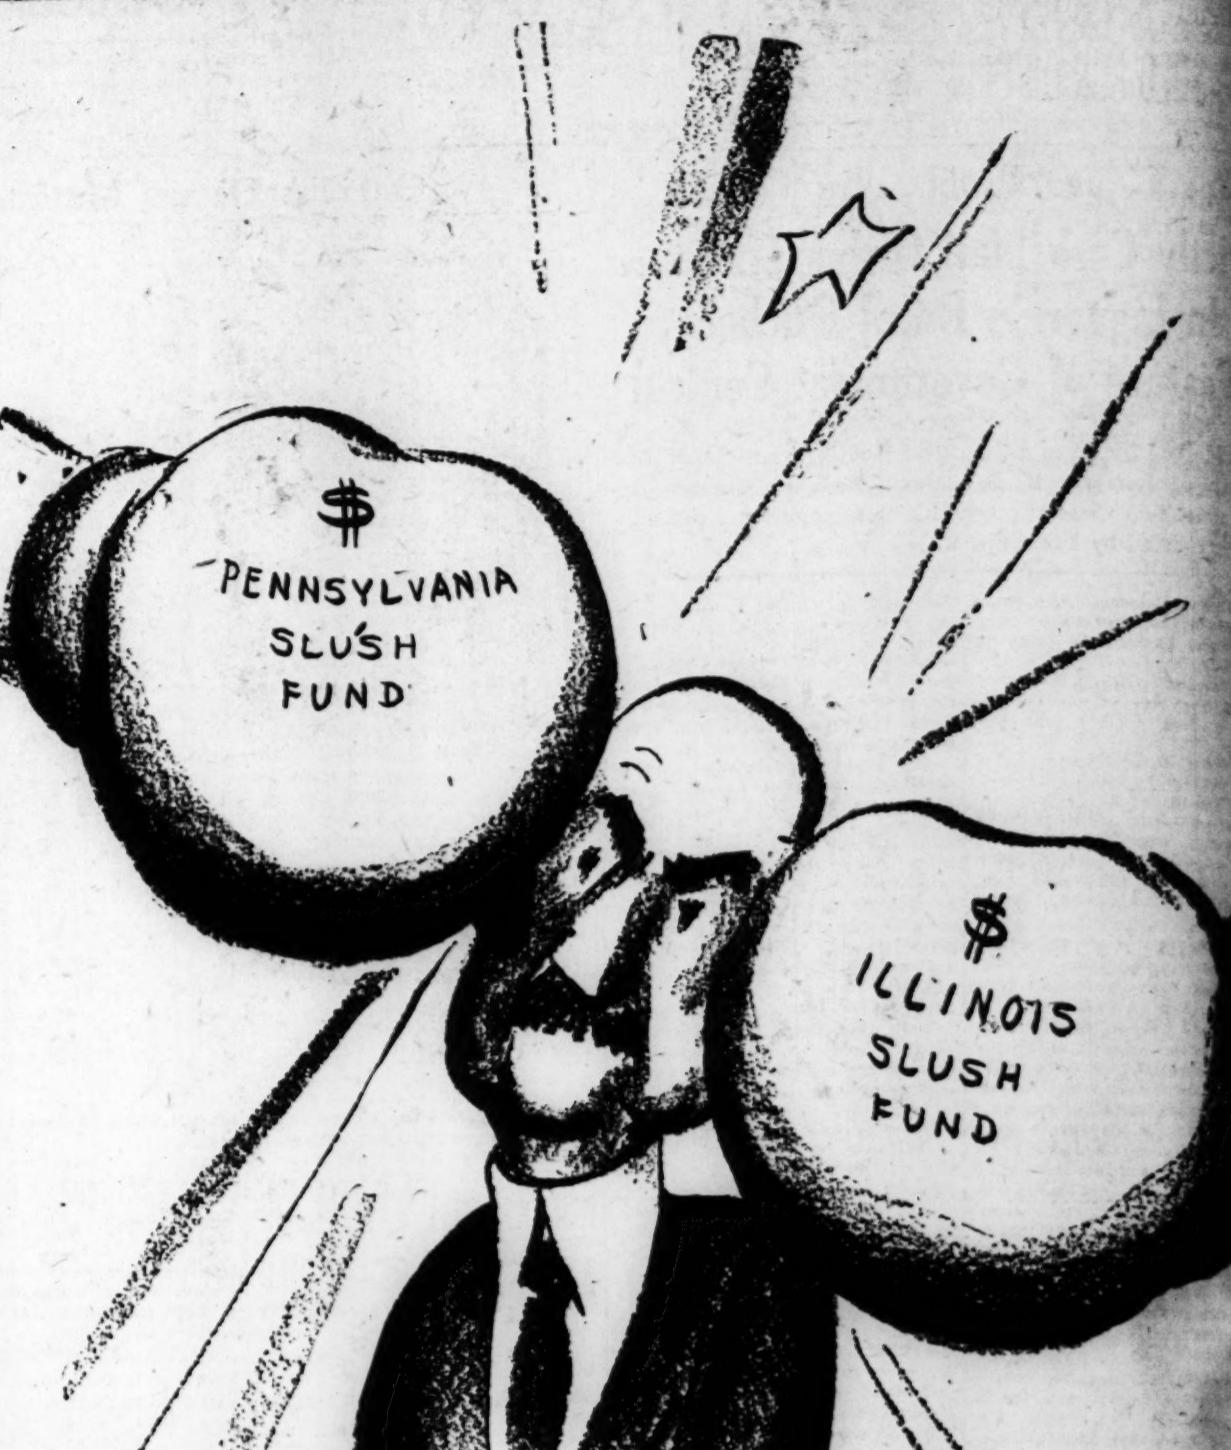

His patron and voucher, Mrs. Annie Besant, is a remarkable woman, head of the Theosophical Society, with its world-wide organization. Though verging on 80 years of age, she is so vigorous and modern that she always uses aviation as a means of travel when available.

Her protege is said to be a mahatma, which in Hindu means "a great-souled one," and Mrs. Besant says it was never intended that he be classed as a Messiah. She hopes that he may become a great teacher, and perhaps reveal something that will lead to a new civilization.

ORDERS.

(With Apologies)

It was a summer evening. The copper's work was done. And he before his cottage door Was boiling in the sun.

And past him, walking down the street, Another went, who walked that beat.

He saw his youngest, Peterkin.

Roll something small and round

That he beside a parking place

In playing there had found;

He ran to ask what he had found.

That was so small, and smooth and round.

The copper took it from the boy.

Who stood expectant by.

And then he slowly turned his head,

And winked the other eye:

"This here's a poker chip," said he.

"But we've new orders now, you see."

"I find them when I walk my beat,

There's many round about;

At times as I walk down the street

The neighbors raise a shout;

They should not play till half-past three,

But we've new orders now, you see."

"Now tell me what the orders are,"

Young Peterkin cries;

EDWARD R. HANDLAN SUED FOR DIVORCE

Wife, an Actress, Brings Action Against Manufacturer in Waukesha, Wis.

Suit for divorce, alleging non-support and desertion, has been filed in Waukesha, Wis., by Mrs. Caroline Kohl Handlan, an actress, against Edward R. Handlan, vice-president of the Handlan-Buck Manufacturing Co., of St. Louis. She also asks for alimony and custody of their five-year-old son, Edward.

They were married Dec. 27, 1919 in Chicago. The week before Miss Kohl, a member of Robert Mantell's company, had played in the American Theatre, St. Louis. They live in St. Louis, Chicago, and Oconomowoc, Wis., but, she alleges, he never supported her and finally deserted her last December.

Handlan's only comment, when notified of the suit, was that his wife has returned to the stage and found it inconvenient to live in St. Louis. He indicated he would not contest the action, and said there was no ill feeling between them.

Handlan is 39 years old, and Mrs. Handlan 31. They became acquainted when they were children, playing around the lakes at Oconomowoc, where their families had summer homes. She is a daughter of the late Charles Kohl, manager of a circuit of Milwaukee houses and museums, and it was reported she and a twin sister were willed $1,000,000 each by their father.

Handlan is a son of the late Alexander H. Handlan, president of the Handlan-Buck company, and shared in his large estate. He is an overseas veteran and, as Maj. Handlan, was in command of the 14th Field Artillery of the 89th Division when it paraded through the Court of Honor here in June, 1919.

MISSOURI BANKER CARVED

FURNITURE IN SPARE TIME

Left Rare Legacy in Houseful of Unusual Specimens; Used Variety of Woods.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FAFETTE, Mo. — When E. W. Bedford, Fayette banker, died eight years ago, he left an unusual and very valuable legacy—a home filled with furniture which he had carved and made himself.

A walnut mantel, a bookcase, china closet, rat rack, tables, chairs and a staircase were some of the work he did. Bedford whittled and carved and chiseled until every pattern was perfect and the wood-work he produced is well-nigh flawless.

One of the pieces—a library table—made from a walnut trolley board used by slaves at the old Hughes farm, southwest of Fayette. The top of this table is one solid piece of wood, 34 inches wide and about 40 inches long.

From one to two years of spare time work went into each piece of furniture that Bedford made, so that the value of his work would be difficult to estimate. Such wood and such workmanship are, indeed, rare, take a considerable fortune to duplicate the Bedford legacy.

STATE OF MRS. J. J. HILL

SUES U. S. FOR $3,141,677

Collection Made Illegally, Under Dures and Under Protest, It Is Alleged.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 4.—Suit for the return of a Federal tax payment of $3,141,677 on the estate of Mrs. Mary T. Hill, widow of James J. Hill, railroad builder, has been filed in Federal Court here against the United States Collector of Internal Revenue for Minnesota.

It is alleged that the money was collected illegally and that part of the tax, $1,130,616.08, was collected under duress and under the pressure and to avoid the assessment of additional penalties and costs. The plaintiff contends that the Government, because of a deficiency in the law at the time, is unable to collect a tax on estates of persons who died during the period from

Nov. 23, 1920, to Nov. 23, 1921.

Mrs. Hill died Nov. 22, 1921.

The rules of admission to American citizenship have been, if anything, too lax, and have been too easily com-

NEW CURB ORDERED ON NONFASCISTS

Mussolini Directs Elimination of Public Manifestations by Government Foes.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Aug. 4.—Premier Mussolini's plans to direct the entire mental, spiritual and physical life of the Italian people into Fascist channels took a long step forward through the adoption yesterday of a decree providing for the gradual elimination of all non-Fascist public manifestations of an intellectual, sporting or charitable character.

The decree, which was adopted by the Cabinet on the direction of the Premier, also calls for the elimination of all ceremonies of commemoration and expressing honors for individuals.

The measure calls for hindering by means of official steps all such public manifestations which are not "within the orbit of the directive tendencies of the Government."

To Limit All Ceremonies.

All officially approved manifestations and ceremonies are to be limited to those effectively useful and which, through the high character of the organizers and the availability of funds, give guarantees of attaining the purposes for which they were intended.

One of the forerunners of the decree has been a far-reaching reorganization of various sporting associations, notably the Automobile Club of Philadelphia; the National Pugilistic Federation; and the Italian Football Federation.

This reorganization is intended to remove disturbing elements and to put the directorates in close touch with the leaders of the Fascist party.

Under Control of Fascists.

Secretary-General Turati recently arranged with Deputy Ferretti, head of the National Olympic Committee and the Italian Football Federation under control of that section of the Fascist party connected with national physical education.

This action followed local conflicts among various sporting elements, resulting several times in riots and the intervention of police.

COOLIDGE RETURNS TO BOYHOOD HOME
AT PLYMOUTH, VT.

House, in his opinion, have placed the country in a flourishing and prosperous condition and have contributed to make the period the most prosperous of any three years in the history of the country.

A review of the administration was given in behalf of Mr. Coolidge at the executive offices yesterday on the third anniversary of his assuming the presidency, and although much progress was made to have been made, it was emphasized that much remains to be done and only continued efforts will make possible the maintenance of the gains already achieved.

The Government cannot always secure the prosperity of the country, it was said, but it can do much to create conditions under which the country will be prosperous if its citizens adhere to sound business practices.

PROGRESS Along Other Lines.

Because of the cause of the conditions confronting the country after the World War, the problems awaiting solution have been largely economic, but Mr. Coolidge feels progress also has been made along other lines, such as in educational work and in improving the general moral standards of the country.

The movements of freight are very large, it was pointed out, and the volume of manufacturing as a whole is good. While the textile industry, which is the largest, has asserted that this industry is now showing signs of recovery. In the agricultural West, except for the Dakotas and Nebraska, it was continued, conditions are good, the few exceptions being due to drought with consequent poor crop conditions.

Gradual Recovery from Deflation.

During the last three years, it was said, there has been a gradual recovery from the deflation of the immediate post-war period, with the railroads on the way to complete recovery from the war strain and their purchasing power going far to stimulate all business in the country.

Commodity prices have meanwhile decreased to a point lower than three years ago, it was said, although they are not as low as in the middle of the deflation period, while wages have not decreased but rather shown some increases over three years ago.

Reduction of taxes, accomplished by two cuts during his administration, Mr. Coolidge believes, has gone far to encourage a healthy business and financial condition in the country. At the same time the steady retirement of the huge public debt and the policy of keeping Government expenditures to as low a figure as possible have been of service in the same direction.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—A new naval ammunition depot in an area of at least 100 miles square for the Pacific Coast and a similar arsenal for the East coast and gulf sections will be established, if Congress follows the recommendations of the Naval Court of Inquiry into the disastrous explosion, July 10, at the Lake Denmark (N. J.) ammunition depot.

The findings, which also recommended the repairing of Lake Denmark to accommodate such small explosives as may be stored there safely, have been approved by Acting Secretary Robinson, who announced that immediate steps would be taken to carry out the recommendations.

The court found that lightning alone was responsible for the explosion, which caused 23 known deaths and injury to 52 other persons, with two Marine Corps privates still listed as missing. The findings added that every known precaution had been taken at the station, particularly against lightning, and that the conduct of officers and men of the navy and Marine Corps during and after the explosion had written another chapter of heroism in the annals of the navy. Decorations were recommended for a number of the personnel.

Damages of $47,000,000.

The damage was placed at $47,000,000 and the value of salvaged munitions at $40,000,000. The court expressed the opinion that "In the light of present knowledge, the area of the Lake Denmark depot is too small and its situation too near inhabited land for the safe storage of more than small amounts of high explosives." It is to be noted," the findings said, "that every officer attached to the station was on the reservation at the time of the disaster. The evidence shows beyond all doubt that the Navy and Marine Corps personnel who were killed met their death while heroically carrying out their duty in the face of imminent peril, of which they were thoroughly cognizant."

Uncoccupied Safety Zones. The board expressed the view that one of the two proposed new depots should be within 1000 miles from the Pacific Coast, with convenient railroad facilities to the Los Angeles-San Diego area, the San Francisco Bay area and to the Columbia River-Puget Sound region. The Eastern depot would be accessible to the Atlantic and Gulf coasts and Eastern naval magazines. Unoccupied safety zones of two miles about each were recommended.

A series of technical recommendations regarding the segregation of various classes of munitions and explosives also was made.

Heroism Awards Recommended. For Capt. Otto C. Dowling, who commanded the Lake Denmark depot and remained at his post for 10 hours until temporarily totally blinded by injuries, the court recommended the Distinguished Service Medal, and that posthumous awards of the navy cross be made to 16 officers and men of the navy and marines, and the navy cross be awarded to Private Casmer M. Kensick, Marine Corps, who had remained with Capt. Dowling.

The court also suggested that "the highest possible appropriate recognition" be awarded to Henry D. Wadham, chief clerk of the depot, whose conduct was described as "nothing short of heroic."

After approving the recommendations, which now will be studied by the various naval bureaus, Acting Secretary Robinson left Washington for an inspection of the Yorktown, Va., ammunition depot.

Illinois territory. In addition to Diehl and Grun 10 other former Carleton employees are connected with the new company. Diehl was elected president of the Carleton Dry Goods Co., following the death of Murray Carleton to direct the liquidation of the concern, which is nearly completed.

Small Nations Arm at Behest Of Bigger Powers, While Italy. And France Fear to Disarm

Geneva Conference on Reducing War Poten-tiality Has a Maze of Military Problems to Penetrate.

By JUNIUS B. WOOD
Special Correspondent of the Post-Dis-patch and the Chicago Daily News.

Copyright, 1926.

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 8.—France and Italy are the coun-tries that do not contemplate dis-armament or neutrality, talk about it. They do not say so, but the fact was obvious to American delegates who participated in the work of the technical committee of the disarmament conference. They led the discussions in widening circles around the subject, stopping whenever possible to lose it in some nebulous labyrinth and hastily marshaling the Balkan manikins for a roll call if a word-wary member suggested something concrete.

Italy does not intend to disarm because she does not know when her next war is coming. Mussolini is not sure whom he will fight but he indicates that he is ready for any and all conflicts, as soon as an easy and profitable victim is located for him to start.

His critics might smooth the way for a scrap with Turkey were it not that the Greeks have a habit of losing their army and that is accomplished, a task of many years, or abandoned as hopeless, she does not want even to think of war.

Russia is using every resource for internal reconstruction and until that is accomplished, a task of

many years, or abandoned as hope-

less, she does not want even to think of war.

Soviet Russia has an army, officially announced at 474,000 without a change, year after year. It is a big army, but as it puts it as much time learning to read and write and in absorbing political doctrines, as it gives to military tactics, it is as much a military machine for home use as it is an army.

What need Rumania has of its immense army of nearly 300,000, beyond providing racks on which to hang gold braids and swords, military experts cannot explain.

Small States Arm at Powers' Best.

Many small countries that took part in the disarmament conference are pawns in the great game, but each is proud of its national-

saw. If France wants to pinch

ism. Their policy is the rule of the iron heel at home and diplomacy of the rattling saber abroad. Armies are needed to keep tyrannical officials in office, to provide scenic effects for the daily defenses and to keep the agreements with France and England, for these two do not know when another war will start in which the little countries can be useful as cannon fodder.

Finland, aside from a ruffle with Sweden over a few islands whose chief crop is snow, has had no cause for a large army. England has airplane bases in Finland, convenient to London, Leningrad and Kristianstad, and if trouble starts between the Lion and the bear an army of Finns might be useful. So Finland has the conscript system of Germany's "green police," of non-observance of the dismemberment clauses of the treaty of Versailles and of reparation payments, but these are merely superficial.

Finland looks at her birth rate, at Germany's birth rate; one nation fading, the other growing; nature's result is inevitable whether in the case of a nation or a tree, and sees help from the outside, as the only salvation. So France trains black soldiers from Africa, brown from Arabia, yellow from Annam, for she must have soldiers. Armament means existence to her.

Russia is using every resource for internal reconstruction and until that is accomplished, a task of many years, or abandoned as hopeless, she does not want even to think of war.

Soviet Russia has an army, officially announced at 474,000 without a change, year after year. It is a big army, but as it puts it as much time learning to read and write and in absorbing political doctrines, as it gives to military tactics, it is as much a military machine for home use as it is an army.

What need Rumania has of its immense army of nearly 300,000, beyond providing racks on which to hang gold braids and swords, military experts cannot explain.

Small States Arm at Powers' Best.

The small states, the fruits of the Locarno treaties, backing out of the League of Nations, are not yet in a position to form a permanent council in the league, were not due to eloquence of its frock-coated representatives, but because it had a substantial army, according to War-

saw. If France wants to pinch

the small Serbs are now better prepared to fight than they were when D'Annunzio perched himself in Fiume. Albania is easy to defend, but picking on her cannot go beyond pronouncements without a rose from the rest of the world. However, Mussolini will have guests from Moscow this summer and they may have suggestions.

Yugoslavia is convenient but the small Serbs are now better prepared to fight than they were when D'Annunzio perched himself in Fiume. Albania is easy to defend, but picking on her cannot go beyond pronouncements without a rose from the rest of the world. However, Mussolini will have guests from Moscow this summer and they may have suggestions.

Germany or if England moves against Soviet Russia, the Polish army can be thrown into the balance. If the policy is sound, to disarm would put at the second table.

Balkan States Full of Alarms.

Czechoslovakia has 150,000 men in her conscript army, better than 1 per cent of her population. Czechoslovakia wants to sit at the table of western powers instead of with those of eastern Europe. Edward Benes, her tireless foreign minister, sensing the potency of inviolability of frontiers fixed by the Versailles treaty as a neighborhood slogan, organized the petition against Jugoslavia and Rumania. It is one subject on which the three agree. The entire will last at least until Czechoslovakia gets in a western group.

Mr. Benes represents the three of 17,000 men. Latvia has an army of 17,000, fairly large for a country of less than 2,000,000 population. Like the two other Northern Baltic countries, it is trying to salvage its economic position without getting such assistance from Western Europe as would compel it to maintain a big army to fight its wars. Like the other Baltic countries, it is negotiating a treaty with Soviet Russia. With these three countries, normal sized armies in Eastern Europe cease.

Latvia and Estonia were not invited to the conference.

Little Nations Big Armies.

Latvia, though slightly larger than Latvia in population, has nearly twice as large an army. Lithuania is waiting for war with Poland and what is officially designated as a "state of war" exists on the border. Poland invaded Lithuania and took its ancient capital and the rich Vilna district. Lithuania intends to get it back, not this year but surely some time.

The league of nations approved Poland's action. Poland is needed more than Lithuania in the European militaristic scheme. In the meantime Lithuania keeps its army ready for action. It also was not invited.

Poland voices fear of Soviet Russia and expresses doubts of Germany, but the real reasons for its army of 250,000, sapping the finances of the struggling nation, are enable the government to rule at home and maintain a standard in the league of nations.

The Locarno treaties, the fruits of its fight for a permanent council in the league, were not due to eloquence of its frock-coated representatives, but because it had a substantial army, according to War-

saw. If France wants to pinch

the small Serbs are now better prepared to fight than they were when D'Annunzio perched himself in Fiume. Albania is easy to defend, but picking on her cannot go beyond pronouncements without a rose from the rest of the world. However, Mussolini will have guests from Moscow this summer and they may have suggestions.

TEXAN AT 100 WIELDS AX AND OPERATES OWN RANCH

Amasa Clark Is One of 11 Living Veterans of Mexican War of 1847.

BANDERA, Tex.—Almost years ago Amasa Clark fought Mexicans before the defenses of the national capital. Today he lives here, a spry man of 100, cutting cordwood and digging post holes. He is the only Texas survivor of the Mexican war of 1847-48 and one of 11 veterans of that war still living. Bearded like a Santa Claus but preserved like an oak, he has resided here 74 years.

Clark has a ranch near here which he grub trees and repaves fences as though he were only half his age. He cut the wood for the great barbecue which celebrated his one hundredth birthday anniversary last September and he can swing an ax better than many men of 50 can swing golf clubs.

Born in New York, Sept. 1, 1825, just a few years after Andrew Jackson whipped the British at New Orleans, this old veteran has passed through five wars.

U. S. ATTORNEY CROOKS BEATING AT POLLING PLACE

Two unidentified men sprung from a car and assault him in Maplewood.

Two men drove up in front of the polling place of Maplewood, Price No. 2, yesterday noon, got out and struck Claude M. Crooks, Assistant United States District Attorney, reigned three companions in the automobile and drove away—all with deliberate and preconceived plan.

Crooks told Chief Caldwell of the Maplewood Police Department that he was shaking hands with a friend when the men stepped up and gave him an uppercut and the other a blow above the ear. He had visited several polling places, apparently the men had been looking for him and just happened to find him in front of this one, 730 Manchester avenue. Crooks, a supporter of Senator Williams, resides at 2209A Bellevue avenue. He is on vacation.

Two Davis Cup Candidates Face Real Test Today

Chandler Plays Richards, Wh. Chapin Opposes Alonso at Seabright.

By the Associated Press.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 4.—Challenges from two youthful Davis Cup team aspirants commanded interest in the annual Seabright tennis tournament today as a preliminary test of strength to try out next week at Forest Hills, N. Y.

Pitted against Vincent Richards in the lower half of the quarter final was the two-time intercollegiate champion, Edward G. Chandler of the University of California, while a match in the upper half called upon the Spanish Internationalist, Manuel Alonso, to try the mettle of Young Alfred H. Chapin Jr. of Springfield, Mass.

Of the two new candidates, Chandler was by far the most impressive yesterday in his decisive triumph over George Lott of Chicago, who held a place in the first two years ago.

After Lott had been extended by the young Texan, Berkley Bell, in a first-round match, he offered an ineffective contrast to the accurate driving and crisp volleying of the workmanlike Chandler, who quickly settled their second-round contest by scores of 6-4, 6-1.

Chapin Beats Johnson.

Chapin won over the chop stroke veteran from Philadelphia, Wallace F. Johnson, because youth seemed the better able to toil under a blistering sun. Early in the match Chapin fell back before the sharp twisting cuts of the Quaker city player, losing by 2-6, but as the second set progressed the veteran's attack began to lose its power and Chapin, pressing boldly to the net, carried off the verdict at 10-8. Then overwhelmed his foe in the closing set, without dropping a game.

Chapin's triumph was one of three hard-fought battles, another of which insured the passing from the competition of Lionel Order, young Leland Stanford University player, who had accomplished the unexpected downfall of R. Norris Williams on Monday.

Order began against Francis T. Hunter with a 6-2 victory, but here the powerful stroking New York player stopped the rush and captured the next two sets, 6-4, 6-1.

Miss Wills in Semifinal.

This victory qualified Hunter to meet the former South Africa star, T. C. Norton, who eliminated Jerome Lang of New York by 6-2, 6-3.

Takelichi Harada of Japan and William M. Johnston also gained the quarter finals.

Semifinals of the women's singles found Helen Wills meeting Eleanor Goss and Elizabeth Ryan facing Mrs. Molla B. Mallory. All triumphed in straight sets, although Miss Wills was carried to 14 games in the final set to win from Mrs. A. H. Chapin Jr., the former Charlotte Hosmer.

Nothing Can Stop Yankees, Says Ruth

The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The secret behind Babe Ruth's power to smash home runs is out. The formula is simple.

"It's just a matter of swinging hard," Ruth told the young men of the Holy Name Society, at a parish meeting here.

The Bambino said nothing could stop the Yankees from winning the American League pennant.

Herb Pennock, star moundsman of the New York Yankees, leads in popularity among the pitchers with the Post-Dispatch readers who have thus far submitted entries in the Babe Ruth All-American team contest. Pennock was named by Babe Ruth in 1924 but failed to make the grade last season, Vance and Rommel being selected.

Shocker, Donohue, Root, Uhle and Rhem follow in order behind Pennock with a scattering of Johnnies, Pate, Kremer and McWeeny votes.

A number of contestants have picked their team members obviously on their slugging ability alone. Warning is hereby repeated that defensive as well as offensive strength must be considered.

Many others continue to have their entries rejected because of too many explanations. These must not contain more than 200 words.

ATHLETICS, 14 GAMES BEHIND LEAD, OPEN SERIES HERE TODAY

CLUB HAS NOT LIVED UP TO EXPECTATIONS

Not Only That, but Ehmke Has Proved More or Less of a "Flop" — Six Homers as Browns Trim Senators.

By Herman Wecke.

During his long association with baseball, Connie Mack, the lanky leader of the Athletics, has learned to take the bitter with the sweet. In these years, Mack has chaperoned pennant winners and world's champions. And he has had tallenders and second division clubs.

But in spite of this, Connie Mack looked sad when he brought his Athletics here this morning for a series with the Browns. Although he has learned to take the bitter with the sweet, there were several reasons for Mack to be just a bit sadder than is his wont.

First there is his ball club. Last spring, forecasters predicted that this was Mack's year, that he would again lead an American League champion, the first one since 1914, the year the Boston Braves shocked the baseball world by downing Connie's famous ball club four in a row in the world's series. The Athletics were consensus picks for the 1926 pennant.

However, the Athletics have not lived up to predictions. The club is bounding along in third place, 14 lengths back of the New York Yankees, who in early forecasts were not so well thought of.

Ehmke Has Fallen Down. The sight of seeing a pennant favorite running so many games back of the lead is enough to make any manager sad. But Mack has something else to be sorry for.

When he arrived in St. Louis thoughts of that third-cornered June trade, Philadelphia-St. Louis, Boston, probably ran through the back of his head. It was this trade that landed Howard Ehmke with WRAY'S COLUMN$2,000,000 Dream Vanishes.

THE world's champion bubble-pricker is the New York State Athletic Commission. Fighters and promoters have inflated into six figures many a time, only to have the august body reduce the swelling rapidly by some unpleasant application of their rules.

Yesterday the commission punctured the biggest bubble of all—Tex Rickard's dream of a $2,000,000 Dempsey-Tunney fight gate.

By declining to grant the plea of Tex to be permitted to establish a maximum price of $50 for ringside seats, and by holding the gambling promoter to the legal limit of $27.50, the commission reduced Tex's potential receipts to about $1,000,000—possibly less.

That's a terrible blow, when it is considered that Rickard's with a well-hurled victory over the Browns. His next out, the Indians beat him for six in the ninth.

Next the Indians again stopped him. His last out, Aug. 2, against Detroit, he came through with a shutout victory.

The right-hander, however, has not done what Connie Mack hoped.

And this, coupled with the fact that his club is bouncing along far in back of the league lead, has lowered the spirits of that baseball veteran—Connie Mack.

Gaston May Work Today.

It is probable that Milton Gaston will face Mack's men in the opener today.

Yesterday was home-run day at Sportsman's Park. The Browns had the edge, 4 to 2, and won, 7 to 6, thereby gaining an even break on the series. Goose Goslin lit four-baggers in two successive at-bats. Williams, Schang, Miller and Harry Rice had homers for the Browns. Gladd pitched good ball until he wilted, in the eighth. Ballou, relief man, just died because Mellie made a sensational play to cut off a hit in the ninth.

Owns a Record of 3-3.

But Ehmke has not come up to expectations. Since joining the Athletics, the pitcher, regarded by all as one of the best in the league, has been able to put over but three victories, against three defeats. And that in a space of a month and a half.

Ehmke has worked 62 2/3 innings for Mack. He has been scored upon 30 times, an average of 4.32 runs a game. The hits off him total 53. He has struck out 31 and walked 24.

Ehmke made his debut for Mack June 21, against his old Boston mates. He was driven off the hill in less than four innings. Then he was bumped by Washington. Followed 12 innnings against the Red Sox. The victory over Chicago, though he was bumped for five runs in the ninth. He followed overhead for the promotion if this fight is fixed, can be reduced only in so far as he may have percentage agreements with Dempsey and Tunney.

The commission's act undoubtedly cost Rickard several hundred thousands of dollars, possibly half a million.

Out Attitude.

THIS is a stuck-back nation, in many ways, but unreasonably so in sports.

Today finds the lawn tennis body of America with its nose high in the wind, viewing with scorn the fact that Suzanne Lenglen has turned professional.

The angle of nasal elevation indicates the degree of hauteur with which the Lawn Tennis Association is considering the proposition to let Suzanne mingle with our simon pure amateurs, while touring this country as a professional.

All of Tunney's boxing while in training here will be done in an open-air ring set up on the beach of Lake Pleasant in full view of all who wish to see him in action.

But Graham has a boy to hurdle before he can hope to tackle either

Taylor Will Be Set Down if He Beats Rosenberg

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Should Bud Taylor succeed in winning the bantam weight title from Charley Rosenberg, he will automatically be suspended in New York State.

Rosenberg just now is on the ineligible list for refusing to meet Bushy Graham, whom the commission named as the logical contender for the title.

The chances are that Bud will take a little rest and then make his peace with the governing body by agreeing to box Graham. This would seem to satisfy everybody and clear the title for all concerned.

Taylor is not averse to meeting Graham, as he has an old score to settle with the Utica flash. The pair met twice before. The first fight was no-decision affair and Graham won the ward in the second meeting over the 12-round route.

Rosenberg or Taylor. Dominick Petrone, the rising little New Yorker, is billed to travel 10 rounds with the highly touted boy from up State.

This little pair of game cocks met once before and Petrone astonished the knowing ones by carrying the fight to the flashy Graham. The fight was a torrid one, and the practically unknown Petrone seemed to be on the way to fame and fortune until he threw out his shoulder in the ninth round and was forced to retire.

Both threaten to eliminate each other, and it looks as if a merry time will be had by all those present enough to witness the scrap.

Graham fights on the style of Jimmy Slattery, but so far has been smart enough to keep his chin out of the way of a sleep punch.

Petrone tears in all the time, slamming away with both hands. Being the harder hitter of the two, he is more apt to score a knockout.

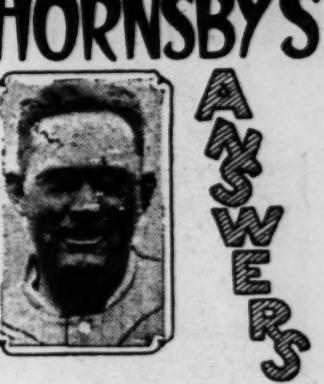

Tunney Starts Work.

By the Associated Press.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Gene Tunney, challenger of Jack Dempsey, who arrived here yesterday, began his training today with light road work. Later in the day he planned to tackle light and heavy championship bags and also to enter the ring for a few rounds with his sparring partners.

All of Tunney's boxing while in training here will be done in an open-air ring set up on the beach of Lake Pleasant in full view of all who wish to see him in action.

Late yesterday three young men, alleged moonshiners, who feared and hated the preacher because he had denounced their activities, were killed in Morgantown, after being run down by posse.

The preacher had received a warning Monday that he would be killed, but he insisted on holding his services.

E. L. Taylor, one of the deputies, said the Rev. Mr. Moss had been holding services in Butler County for two months moving from place to place. He dealt mainly with the wickedness of liquor offenders and law violators.

He had been told several times to stop.

Pushing his way through the crowd, Taylor ran to the window in an attempt to get a shot at the slayers, but they had disappeared among the trees.

The first arrest was that of Cliff Wilson, 21, captured early yesterday after bloodhounds had trailed him to a hiding place in the woods a mile from the schoolhouse.

An hour later Fred Wilson, 27, was run down by officers who were details along the road in front of the schoolhouse in a motor.

James Phelps, 16, was found hidden about 200 yards from the schoolhouse.

The three, Taylor said, are known to be those wanted in connection with the killing.

Cliff Wilson has been identified as Jo Deeweese, 14-year-old girl as one of the men who fired the shots.

Whether others fired or not is not known as yet.

Wilson denies knowledge of the shooting.

CROWD APPLAUDS STYLES DISPLAYED AT FASHION SHOW

Garden Theater Filled on Opening Night of Pageant That Continues
Until Aug. 20.

There were so many lovely dresses, hats and coats on display at the 1926 premiere of the St. Louis Fashion Pageant at the Garden Theater last night that it would take four women, talking steadily from now until the middle of next week, to discuss them properly. A hundred husbands might, by cutting down on lunches and buying last season's overcoats, be able to pay for this opulent array of finery before the style changes again.

Once more the management of the pageant has demonstrated that a display which is frankly commercial can be presented in a manner entertaining and at times really beautiful. A capacity audience last night was delighted with the tasteful mingling of fashions, tableaux, vaudeville specialties and pretty girls. Colors spilled upon the stage in such profusion that it seemed as if someone had been breaking up a rainbow with a hammer and tossing chunks of it under the lights. A band of jolly crickets added to the charm of the woodland setting by doing a dance with castanets in the shrubbery about the stage, whenever the orchestra permitted them to be heard.

Style of Other Days.

The pageant began with a parade of the fashions of other days before a "flapper queen," who sat cross-legged on a high throne. Models wearing a hockskirt and a bustle came down the light-flooded staircase from the dark, looking like animated illustrations from Godey's Lady's Book. There was a girl dressed in the fashion of a Dickens character—the orchestra played "Bent Bolt" for her—there was a Puritan maiden, a Gibson Girl and Annie Rooney. Hand-clapping and laughter acclaimed the feminine fancies of other days. The act received its proper modern conclusion with a clog-dance by two determined, vigorous young men.

Then the first promenade of models began. They came from the wings on either side of the stage, walked around the low stone coping of the pool before the stage and stood for a moment on turning pedestals at each side of the stage. Ushears next led them up halfway in the amphitheater so that those further back might study the styles at close range.

It was very apparent last night that skirts will be short the coming season.

Fashions for Men.

Judging by the models on exhibit at the Pageant the well-dressed man will wear a robin's egg blue hat, a monogrammed handkerchief drooping five inches from his breast pocket and a sheepish, self-conscious grin. Men's suit coats will be very short—almost peajackets in the college mode—but overcoats are longer. For children long trousers are the

Gold and Silver Lace Now Used for Daytime
Wear—Style Pageant Costumes Described in Detail.

By MARGUERITE MARTIN.

MAKING allowances for the fact that the efforts of exhibitors are directed chiefly toward outshining each other in startling and bizarre effects, the costumes shown at last night's Style Show opening indicate that this is to be a season of glitter and sheen. Gold and silver lace are employed, especially costumes when intended for evening. Even formal gowns are touched up with metallic cloth or metal lacquered leathers. Jewels and metals gleam from almost every hat. The most modest chapeau sparkles with a jeweled ornament and some of the dressy ones sport rhinestone pins a foot long.

Many evening gowns are solidly covered with sparkling paillettes. There was one fish-scaled with silver, another with gold, another with crystal and amethyst sequins, another with aqua-marinines. The gold one had its accompanying wrap of gold lace embroidered all down the back with red, green and gold beads and paillettes. The silver sequined gown had its coat of shell pink velvet embroidered with silver beads and galloon to match the frock. To such extent is the ensemble costume now carried out.

This does not dismiss the array of costumes for any models along with the metallic and be-jeweled textiles are shown lustrous and supple velvets, the silk pile woven upon chiffon, shiny satin back crepes, some taffetas, some moirés and among the woolens many new weaves and patterns in kashas and tweeds.

Silhouette Unchanged.

The silhouette has not undergone any startling change unless it be that more than ever interest concentrated upon the blouse and less upon the skirt. Skirts are inconsequential, almost evanescent, in many instances mere ruffles attached to a long-waisted blouse.

Some evening gowns are bouffant and in that case have transparent gauze panels at the waistline, in concession to length of line and modesty but for daytime wear skirts are so short as barely to cover the knees and where there is fullness it is kept as flat as possible.

Waistlines are creeping up a little where there are full blouses to upraise the paupus in paupus as below normal. The very full blouse with a dolman sleeve is a new feature. Sleeves are very important, wide at the armhole and flowing widely below the elbow, and then, and if a lad of 6 cannot walk down the street without tripping over his can he should be spanked. Little girls will appear in flowing pink dresses, all frilly and lacey. At least, little girls did last night.

The young men, girls and children who acted as models moved through their parts briskly so that an amazing variety of apparel was shown in a space not overlong. Men in the audience seemed to enjoy the fashion parade as much as the women. Brunettes and blondes were about evenly divided and like their dresses, some were more popular than others. Open work hose is still stylish.

Vaudeville Interlude.

Following the first promenade of models the Garden Theater's sliding curtain—a low Grecian wall covered with ivy—opened on a Spanish fiesta with much banging of tambourines and clacking of castanets. The dancing was spirited and capable and some first-rate tumblers won applause by their feats of balancing and strength.

Sideburns are still fashionable among the men of Spain and the girls continue to be addicted to the use of languorous glances.

Another promenade of models, this time the girls wearing coats, fur trimmed and all fur. The men appeared in topcoats and overcoats. The vast amount of embroidery work, steel beads and rhinestones on coats and dresses, together with such luxurious colors as wine, scarlet, henna, purple, tobacco brown caught in the spotlights and made the passing show a delight to the eyes.

The third specialty on the program was entitled "The Snow Man" and served as a prelude to the fourth, called "Winter Sports." These scenes opened with a ballet of two dozen or so chorus girls attired in white fur-trimmed costumes their limbs bare. They danced about two snowmen who turned out to be big dancers. The snowmen scampered away after a bit and the curtain rolled back on a winter scene except that rose bushes were happily blooming amid the snow and ice, and the crickets continued to sing in the darkness backstage.

Ice Skaters Are Active.

On a specially frozen platform of ice whirled four skaters, named on the program as "World Champion Ice Skaters." The audience was quite willing to accept them at that rating and loudly applauded their graceful gyrations. This scene particularly beautiful excellent lighting effects having been achieved by Director Solari. When the third promenade of models began music and lights had formed a brave alliance and the closing parade was best of all. Evening wraps and gowns on pretty girls, children in their best Sunday-go-to-meeting attire, a woodland pit shot with pinks and blues and greens; filled with sighs of envious women; watched by bewildered, slightly apprehensive men.

As an added fashion note a number of masculine models paraded again. Slave bracelets are de trop. The powder puff if worn by the well-dressed man should be carried in a reticule carefully concealed about the person! A fawn gray hat with turquoise band is quite the finishing touch to the well-dressed man's turnout this season, but should be tied to the left ear with an invisible cord to prevent accidents.

The concluding act of the pageant— "Elegy Fair" and shows five girls in very tight one-pieceights does a symbolic dance. An attack of the pageant explained that this scene is the management's concession to art and that the one-pieceights are the NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 4.—Representative Joseph T. Deal, Democrat, was renominated on the face of unofficial returns in the Second Virginia District in the only contest in the State's 10 congressional districts in yesterday's primary, the nine other incumbents being unopposed.

With only 10 of the 118 precincts in the race, Deal, who is an avowed "wet," received $170 votes; former State Senator Alfred C. Smith, classed as a "dry" and reputed to have Ku Klux Klan support, 3841, and Col. George C. Cabell, "dry" 3225.

Smith conceded Deal's renomination, but said he would not be a candidate for the House.

John Kukorsola of Centerville Station Must Serve Liquor Sentence and Pay $500 Fine.

John Kukorsola of Centerville Station, a suburb of East St. Louis, whose 90-day jail sentence for violation of the Volstead act was suspended by Federal Judge English of East St. Louis in May, 1922, was arrested today on a capias issued to compel him to serve the sentence.

The case of Kukorsola is one of a number of similar cases discovered by Department of Justice examiners who have been investigating the affairs of the court of Judge English, against whom impeachment proceedings are pending in the United States Senate.

Kukorsola, who had served 13 days of his sentence when Judge English released him, had also been fined $500, which he did not pay. He will have to pay this fine at the expiration of his sentence, which he will begin serving today in the jail of Jackson County at Murphysboro.

SAYS NEWSPAPER IS SOURCE OF HAPPINESS AND WISDOM
Associated Press Executive Declares Citizen Is Not Well Equipped Unless He Reads Carefully.

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 3.—"If you would be happy, follow closely the news of the day," declared Edward McKernan, superintendent of the Eastern division of the Associated Press, speaking last night at Old First Night in celebration of the fifty-second anniversary of the founding of the Chautauqua Assembly.

"...and contemplate," he said, "for this is the beginning of wisdom. The one institution that without equivocation or apology reflects human nature and presents to you the bare, cold facts of life is the daily press. You are not well informed nor particularly equipped for the duties of citizenship unless with diligence you follow succeeding events as they pass in review on the printed page."

The problem of our society is not the ignorance of the uninformed, but the loose thinking of the misinformed. The man who does not think at all is a lesser liability. The one who thinks but has not learned to think straight is a social menace. We cannot think straight until we have a comprehensive knowledge of things as they are, and this is to be had only from the newspapers."

PENNSYLVANIA Gets Detroit Line. WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Conditional authorization to the Pennsylvania Railroad to acquire control by lease of the Pennsylvania, Ohio & Detroit Railroad was granted today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The conditions fixed by the commission will be announced later. The Pennsylvania already controls the stock of the smaller road.

13 MONTHS TO LIVE

The Love Story of a Man Pledged to Commit Suicide After His Honeymoon.

By OCTAVUS ROY COHEN

(Copyright, 1926.)

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE.
HEN Beverly came into Alan's room the following morning, he had gone. There was a note pinned to his pillow:

Beverly dear:
I didn't want to wake you. But I've started in quest of the golden fleece—and oh! how golden it will be.

ALAN.

All day long she listened for the telephone, but she did not hear from him until that evening at 4 o'clock.

The front door opened and he burst into the apartment, his face proclaiming vast enthusiasm.

"I've got it! The right sort of a job—it's a chance—not much of a chance, but perhaps if I really have the superhuman powers we make me believe I possess!"

"Where? What is it, Alan?"

"Real estate. And it's with Starr & Watkins, on their Forest Grove proposition!"

She clapped her hands with delight. She knew of Starr & Watkins as the leading realtors of the city, and Forest Grove, their new development adjoining the city's finest residential section, was the most pretentious thing in the real estate history of the community.

"I had a long talk with Dan Watkins. He seemed to like me. At first he offered me a salaried position and was pleased when I refused it. Of course, the property almost sells itself; not only because of its inherent soundness. And he is going to give me 5 percent on gross as commission. I don't know why. He assured me that on such high-class property the usual commission is not customarily more than 3 percent; but he said he had a hunch. You see, Beverly, it's up to me now. The lots sell for an average of $4000. That is $200 per lot commission. My total earnings are limited only by my ability as a salesman—and I'm going to make sales history in this town, I believe it."

"Well, Alan, I know you will. You've got to!"

"He explained to me that I might sell nothing. Most of his salesmen have been at the game for years—they have worked up long lists of prospects: I'm starting blank—without anything. I've got to do it all myself."

She looked into his glowing face; she took his hand between both of hers.

"We're going to be very happy, Alan."

He threw back his head and laughed. "Happy—and busy. And how different it will make things—just to be doing something; to be fighting a battle—no matter how uphill!"

"And the reward?" she whispered.

He met her gaze squarely. "When I shall have succeeded," he said softly, "the reward will be claimed."

Dan Watkins, junior partner of the real estate firm of Starr & Watkins, walked into the private office of his associate and seated himself on the desk.

"Arthur," he grinned. "I think I have made a damned fool of myself."

"Simple task. Suppose you explain the exact method you employed this time."

"I shall put it brutally. Arthur—so that you may count right on the point of the jaw. I have just employed a young man as salesman on a commission basis. He has never in his life sold real estate. He knows absolutely nothing about it. And I not only gave him a job, but I assigned him to the Forest Grove staff. No—wait a minute before you explode and mess up the whole office; I started him off on a five per cent commission."

Arthur Starr's feet settled flat on the floor. He folded his hands across a mezzanine landing of decided proportions and withered his partner with a glance.

"And just why," he queried caustically, "did you perform this logically idiotic feat?"

"Because," answered Watkins seriously, "I have a hunch I'm right. Joking aside, Arthur, there was something about this chap I couldn't resist. He's a fine-looking fellow, obviously a gentleman—and educated. He was well dressed, immaculately groomed. But—while I'm a practical and prosaic business man—I saw tragedy in his eyes and a feverish earnestness which amounted to—well, it didn't seem entirely human."

"A nut! At five per cent!" But Starr was keenly interested; his jocularity cloaked a genuine respect for his partner's hunches.

"This man will be a winner," expostulated Watkins. "I haven't a doubt of it. I want you to meet him."

"What is his name?"

"Beverly. Alan Beckwith. He was here when I arrived this morning and I've been closeted with him ever since. He grasps things readily and has the knack of getting to essentials. He has gone out now to buy a little car to carry his prospective customers in."

"Then he isn't broke?"

"For heaven's sake! In fact, he declined an advance which I was silly enough to offer and refused a regular salary. Perhaps that is why I offered him a flat five per cent as against the three we pay our sales force."

Arthur Starr grinned. "Next thing I know," he chuckled, "you'll offer this freak a partnership. He seems to have hypnotized you."

"Frankly," answered Watkins, "he has."

Perhaps it was that hidden something blazing through which marked Alan for success from the start. It was a quality which Dan Watkins never did explain satisfactorily, even to himself; and one which Arthur Starr derided—and admitted.

There was something about him—an intense, a commanding earnestness—which caused business men, habitually brusque, to listen to him. Alan selected his prospects boldly and at random; he canvassed big office buildings—and time after time he came in contact with men who had no reason whatsoever to be interested in Forest Grove lots. There were men who already owned their own homes. "And certainly you wouldn't suggest, Mr. Beckwith, that these lots are a sound investment!"

"Certainly not, sir. If you are not interested in building a home, I think I'd better not take any more of your time."

And there were men who loathed agents of all sorts and took a cruel delight in torturing them. These men usually started that way with Alan, but there was a subtle something in his quiet presence which forbade coarseness; it was as though this particular sale must be negotiated. The man to whom he talked often terminated the interview with a queer feeling that he had become involved in an affair of genuine moment.

Of course, Alan never explained; never intruded, the personal element. He came to his customers as a salesman inspired with a firm belief in the value of what he strove to sell and his harum-scarum, unorthodox manner of selecting prospects bore amazingly ripe fruit.

At the office they marveled as sale after sale was negotiated. In the first three months of Alan's employment he averaged two sales a week.

"The man is crazy," snorted Arthur Starr. "He picks 'em out of thin air and lands 'em. Look at some of these names—the hardest-boiled babies in town—and Beckwith has their John Hancocks on contracts. Good as gold. I never would have sent a salesman near any of 'em. He's a wonder."

"I'm afraid I do, Beverly."

Meals From the Pantry Shelf

By HANNAH WING.

TO eat from the pantry shelf on occasion is not an evidence of poor housekeeping. There are times—when one returns from the country, or from vacation, or wishes to bring in an impromptu guest—that the well-stocked pantry shelf and the ability to prepare a quick, satisfying meal from it is very good housekeeping indeed. Of course much depends on the stock which should be complete and always replaced as soon as used. The second consideration is a few specialized menus that can be depended upon. Since they will be used but seldom and almost never with the same guests, neither family or friends will tire of them.

"Don't they haunt you, Arthur?"

"Well, what if they do? I'm in the real estate game, ain't I? And I see him every day. No, it ain't the eyes, Dan; it's something a darned sight more elusive than that: there's something eating at Beckwith's heart. He's doing more than selling lots and making money—a darned sight more. I'm telling you! I don't know what it is, but it gives me the creeps—and makes me want to help him."

"You could do the firm a bigger favor. Whatever this mysterious power—it's bringing results. Forest Grove is going over like a million dollars. I'm figuring already on extending it south a couple of blocks."

"What do you mean?"

"The other realtors in this burg ain't stone blind. They've got their eyes on him; he's pretty much of a freak. He'll get others."

"Alan Beckwith," said Watkins firmly, "is loyal."

"Yeh—and he ain't doing so worse, either. Rate he's going, his first year's income will be around $20,000."

"It's wonderful, all right."

But at that very moment Alan and Beverly were poring over sheets of paper which were covered with figures.

"It isn't going to be enough, Beverly. I've worked the best months of the year: April, May and June—the marriage months, the home-instinct months—and while 20,000 a year seems pretty wonderful, it doesn't help very much under these circumstances."

Arthur dropped on his arm. "We've got to go right on, Alan. You've found yourself. You've learned what you can do. You've added another reason for living. Perhaps you have already used up the best selling season, but then you've learned a lot about it; you're a veteran now—and you've got to do better and better and better."

"I'll have to do better to continue the $20,000 pace, dear. That will mean 10,000 to add to the 12,000 we started with—after we've deducted living expenses. A total of 20,000 won't look like much to Alan North; he has already invested at least $5000 more than that."

"But if he sees a certainty of eventual repayment?"

"There's a chance, of course. I don't know—Meanwhile, I'll just

The loops of the ribbons flying loose around the simulated blouse and the edge of the skirt are touched with silver paillettes and show a lining of silver. The central figure shows the back of a gold lace cape richly embroidered from top to bottom in gold beads of various sizes, jade and red sequins carrying out an elaborate Oriental design of arabesques and scrolls. Around the edge are stripes of jade and Chinese red chiffon velvet separated by lines of gold beads. The garment is lined with jade velvet of chiffon-like texture and there is a stole of martan. This wrap belongs to and is worn over a gown constructed entirely of gold paillettes, rather large-sized ones, sewn in patterns up and down a slender foundation with a medium brim.

In the lower sketch, three ensembles are shown. All carried out in rich materials. The first is made of kasha in a band of green, having an ornate done in gold and darker green silk. The skirt is straight, narrow and matching but plain. The blouse is of crepe, the bodice and border around the neckline and the back and front are decorated with gold velvet, helmet-shaped, rising up back and front, standing puffing on the crown.

INSANE INCENDIARY
SOUGHT IN $75,000
FIRE THAT SWEEPS
BIG BOX FACTORY

Discovery Made That William Koestlin Escaped From Sanitarium Before Woods & Down Blaze.

20 ENGINES CALLED
BY GENERAL ALARM

Wind-Borne Sparks Ignite Neighboring Roofs, But These Are Extinguished With Little Loss.

Following a $75,000 box factory fire in North St. Louis early today it was discovered that William Koestlin, an insane man with an incendiary record, had escaped from the City Sanitarium last night. A man was seen running from the scene of the fire as firemen arrived. The police are seeking Koestlin.

The fire, to which 20 engine companies were summoned by general alarm, destroyed the plant of the Woods & Down Box Co., 1225 Mullanphy street. It was discovered by a resident of the neighborhood at 4:10 a. m.

Koestlin, who is 23 years old, lived at 4558 Swan avenue. Three years ago he confessed that he and another young man started a fire at the Wiles-Chipman Lumber Co., which resulted in $100,000 loss, and a smaller blaze. He was found to be insane, and was committed to the sanitarium.

Today's fire, of suspected incendiary origin, was made more dangerous by the proximity of two other large plants to the box factory. These are the steel plant of the International Shoe Co., on the opposite side of Mullanphy street, and the plant of the John O'Brien Boiler Works, adjoining the box factory, as well as several large dwellings.

The two-story brick building occupied half of the square between Twelfth, Howard, Thirteenth and Mullanphy streets. It was filled with boxes and light lumber which burned fiercely, throwing up high flames under the urge of the morning breeze.

Sparks started a half a dozen blazes on the roofs of neighboring buildings, but they were extinguished without much damage. During the course of the fire the south wall of the box plant collapsed, but firemen had been ordered away and no one was hurt.

Lines of hose blocked Illinois Traction System traffic on Thirteenth street for more than an hour after the engine companies arrived.

The company's former building, a two-story structure on the same site, was destroyed by fire in July, 1919, at a loss of $50,000. Thirteen firemen and one employee were overcome by smoke during that fire.

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 5.—District Judge Charles Ashe today refused the application of Charles Ponzi of Boston for a writ of habeas corpus and ordered him turned over to the Massachusetts authorities. He is under sentence there to serve from seven to nine years in prison as a swindler.

Ponzi's attorneys, however, gave immediate notice of appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeals which does not meet until next October in Austin.

The effect of the appeal, if prosecuted, will be to keep Ponzi in Houston until the higher court renders a decision.
